The Down Factory Store

www.downfactorystore.com

Thanks to our retail and "online" customers we are one of the largest resources for goose down comforters, pillows and featherbeds. Consumers that compare our quality and prices to those of department stores, discounters, catalogs and other web sites find that we are indeed unbeatable - and we guarantee that! Know the facts of down before you buy.

FACT: Down comes from the chest of the bird to keep it insulated from the weather. Feathers (those things with quills) come from the back of the bird to keep it dry. Down can cost as much as $10.00 an ounce, feathers 10¢ an ounce. Over 90% of down manufacturers find it to their advantage to add over 30% feathers to their down. It's like buying three pounds of ground sirloin and getting two pounds of meat and one pound of fat. You have paid for meat and got fat, it's the same with their down, they both do it because it's legal. We do not contaminate our down by adding feathers to it.

KNOW THE FACTS BEFORE YOU BUY IT

FACT: Fill power, this is the amount the cubic inches filled by one ounce of down. Higher fill power means a higher quality down. You will find that as the quality of the down increases, so does the comfort & life of the item.

FACT: We use only high thread count, baffle box construction, 100% cotton covers on our down comforters & pillows. Down insulates by trapping air and holding in your body temperature, keeping you comfortable through the night. Low quality comforters are usually heavier because it takes more of an inferior down to fill a comforter. Inferior down becomes clumpy and it can't breath, resulting in your becoming over heated and uncomfortable. Our high quality down gives you the warmth and comfort without the weight.

FACT: In all likelihood you will have your comforter longer than the car you are now driving.

"We go the distance for you."

Montauk To Paris

If This Attempt In 1919 Succeeded You'd Never Have Heard Of Lindbergh

By Dan Rattiner

In the Europe of 1914, royalty reigned. There were kings and queens, dutchesses and dukes, barons and baronesses, and the countries they ruled all had alliances with one another, pledging to attack an enemy that attacked a friend. And that's how World War I started. A Serbian terrorist shot Archduke Ferdinand of Austria-Hungary. As a result, Austria-Hungary declared war on Serbia, the French declared war on Austria-Hungary, the Germans declared war on the French and the English declared war on the Germans.

Soon, all Europe was in flames, and as the fighting went on year after year, the American government was called upon by their allies, the English and French, to join the fray. As a result, President Woodrow Wilson mobilized the United States Army and in 1916 sent a quarter of a million of our boys off in troop ships to win the war "over there."

We did. Our arrival in force tipped the balance. The Germans sued for peace. It was all over. An armistice was signed in November of 1918.

America rejoiced at the end of this war. And in the middle of all this good feeling it was noted that there was one part of our armed forces that was mobilized but had never taken part in the proceedings. All around the country, and here on the East End at Montauk, in particular, there were primitive airfields at which amateur pilots, mechanics and other roughnecks called up by the Army had assembled a motley array of flying machines, bi-planes, dirigibles and balloons. The Navy had sent ships. The Army had sent men and artillery. The little air force, financed by the military, was spanking new and, because none of the contraptions could fly very far, still sat where they had been assembled.

an attraction not only here in the United States, but also throughout Europe, particularly in England and France. French millionaire, Raymond Orteig, offered up a prize of $25,000 to anyone who could succeed in doing it, non-stop from New York to Paris. But it would be eight years before anyone could do that. In the meantime, there was the question of who would be the first group of pilots to fly either a bi-plane or a dirigible non-stop across the Atlantic. In fact, in 1913, a British newspaper, the Daily Mail, offered 10,000 pounds to the first air crew to fly across the Atlantic non-stop. It was a challenge hard to resist. But, as the prevailing winds blew from west to east, the odds were that the accomplishment would take place from America to Europe rather than the other way around. Nevertheless, there would be those that would try, either way. National honor, and 10,000 pounds, depended upon it.

At the time, there was no downtown Montauk. There was the railroad, which came to its terminus at the north end of Fort Pond just as it does today. And there was Montauk Highway, unpaved, just two ruts in the dirt, that ran through the Hamptons, proceeding from west to east between the Atlantic Ocean and Fort Pond, and ending at the Montauk Lighthouse.

Army engineers, studying the situation at the time, noted there were only a few hundred yards between

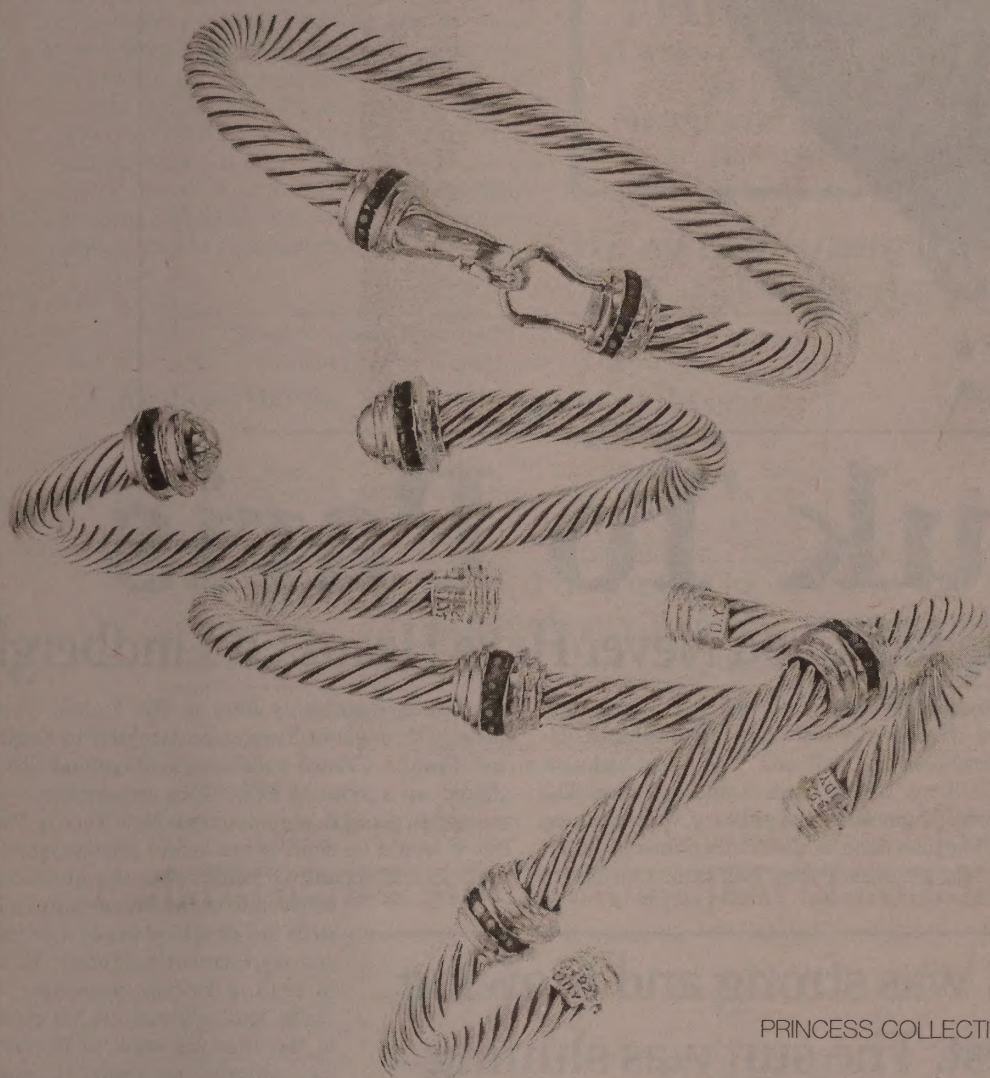

The wind was strong and blowing to the west. The sun was shining. What conditions would be over the Atlantic they did not know... but they decided this was their chance.

As a result of this, amidst all the joy that the end of the war had brought, the people of America began to find themselves participating in a national dream. America was untouched. Europe was devastated. There ought to be a way to reach out to them, to fly something from either America to Europe or from Europe to America. There was this fledgling technology and it was only going to get better. Someday, somebody was going to do it.

This desire to connect the old and the new had

Lizzie Grubman organized a fashion show and party at the restaurant Koi in Los Angeles the other day. She had nine valet parkers, but it was not nearly enough and the crowd was in a rage. Hundreds of them waited an hour or more for their cars. "Unfortunately, there was a backup. I'm sorry everybody had problems," Lizzie said. Seems to have calmed down from the time the going got tough out front of the Conscience Point Inn in Southampton.

People working on the huge Ira Rennert mansion in Sagaponack often stop at the Sagg Main Store to pick up their luncheon sandwiches. The Rennert mansion has been in construction for nearly four years and when it is done should be the largest private home in America — 106,000 square feet on 58 acres. According to Bob Baugh, the movie actor and part owner of the store, the scuttlebutt is the mansion is not quite half done. Altogether, it will take nine years. Hey, these things take time. Rome wasn't built in a day.

The thriller penned by Nora Ephron of East Hampton, opens as a film entitled Unfaithful on May 10 and those who saw it at its pre-opening private screening the other day were spellbound. Directed by Adrian Lynne, (Flashdance, 9 1/2 Weeks, Lolita, Fatal Attraction), the film stars Richard Gere, Diane Lane and Olivier Martinez.

The most celebrated stars on Broadway this year are all East Enders. Edward Albee (The Goat or Who is Sylvia) is from Montauk. Kathleen Turner (The Graduate) is from Amagansett. Mel Brooks and Matthew Broderick (The Producers) have homes in Water Mill and Bridgehampton. Wonderfully talented people.

Revlon's Ron Perelman of East Hampton has signed British actress Rachel Weisz (The Mummy) as a model for some of his new advertising campaigns. His main model is, of course, Halle Berry.

Paul McCartney of Amagansett, off on his long awaited U.S. tour, has received an intriguing invitation. Fidel Castro has invited him to add Havana to his tour list. What the hell is anyone to make of THAT?

The Manhattan home of the late Warner LeRoy is for sale. It's 8,000 square feet, has stunning views of Manhattan and New Jersey and the asking price is $16.5 million. Talk to Douglas Elliman. LeRoy's family has published a slender tribute to this wonderful man, whose energies and ideas brightened the world with Tavern on the Green and the Russian Tea Room.

The East End Women's Network has selected Glorianne Campbell of Jamesport as its 2002 Woman of the Year. She was honored at a gala the north end of Fort Pond and Fort Pond Bay where the railroad tracks ended, insufficient for an airfield, but there was plenty of room between the Atlantic Ocean and Fort Pond. There was also Second House, the only structure standing in the immediate area, which had been built in colonial times and could be used as a barracks by army workers while they built the airfield. There was also a dirt road that went along the eastern shore of Fort Pond, connecting the railroad to Montauk Highway. Supplies could be brought in by rail, then wagons could haul them to the other side of the pond. And that's where they would build several hangar buildings and a small control tower. They could also designate a flat area running parallel to Montauk Highway as a runway, clearing it of rocks and shrubbery. And, perhaps most important of all, they could make good use of flat, calm Fort Pond as a place over which to launch watercraft, balloons and dirigibles when the wind was right.

The airfield was built. There are old black and white photographs of this airfield, mostly of dirigibles and the huge hangars that were constructed for them alongside Fort Pond. Many of them are framed and mounted on the walls of the Shagwong Tavern in downtown Montauk today. Others may be seen in local museums, libraries and old guidebooks.

None of these flimsy military buildings exist today, but for the record, the largest of the hangars was constructed directly on the southern shore of Fort Pond, just to the north of the six-story apartment building in the center of town and just behind the Montauk Movie Theatre. Dirigibles from inside this hangar could be launched directly over the water.

In some ways, I think, the attempt to fly to Europe from Montauk in 1919 was spurred on by the fact that, though the army had simply abandoned the airfield when the war ended in 1918, all of the hangars still stood. There were also various bi-planes and dirigibles still about with nowhere to go and only a skeleton crew to maintain them. Somebody got an idea. Let's fly one of these things to Europe!

The dirigible selected for the attempt was the C-5, and Lieutenant Commander E.W. Coil was the man to head the crew. There was never any thought that this craft could make the flight in a single hop. Dirigible technology would not advance to that level for another decade.

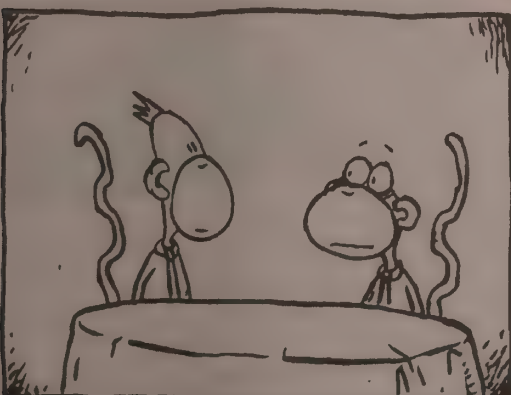

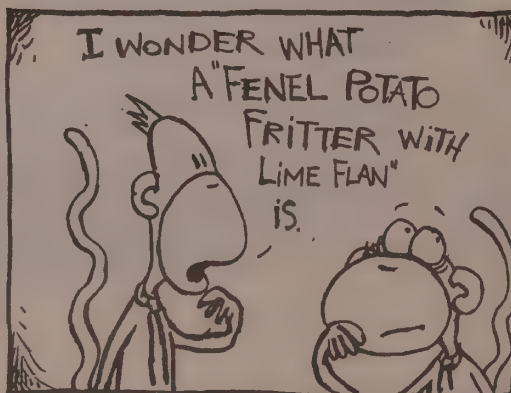

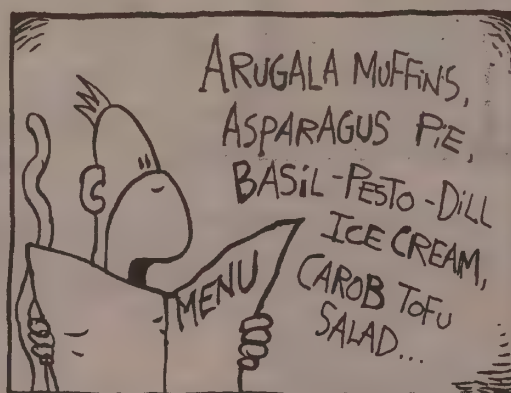

On the other hand, nobody, not even a team of people in an aircraft, had even gotten across the Atlantic in a series of hops. And so that was the challenge they hoped to overcome. No one had done it. For the first, fame awaited.

The flight plan was simple. They would take off from the airfield at Montauk, land at a known airfield in Newfoundland, replenish the hydrogen in the HOUSE GUESTS TO LOOK OUT FOR....

See Ya Out There

Time To Get In The Car, Drive Out On The LIE And Weekend In The Hamptons

By Dan Rattiner

The phone rang.

"Hello? Oh hi, Barney. Yeah, we're just packing up. Enid's in the bedroom doing her face and whatever. You going out to Southampton tonight? Yeah, sure. Well, we'll see you when we get out there. Probably. It'll be great to see you. Okay. Bye."

"Who was that, honey?" came a voice from the bedroom.

"Barney. He and Sally are coming out for the weekend."

"Well, I hope we get to see them," said the voice.

"Me too. I told them we'd see them out there."

The phone rang a second time.

"Hello? Oh, hi. Just a minute. Enid, it's for you."

"Tell whoever it is I'll call back."

"Hi. She's uh, indisposed just now. Who's calling?"

"Richard!" said Enid from the bedroom.

"Oh sure, Katlean. I'll tell her. No. About a half hour, I think. You taking the kids? Great. No, we'll get together when we're out there. Need anything? Well, we're still in town. Yes, we DID stop at Zabar's. We got that. And that too. I'll tell her. See you out there."

"Who was that, Richard?"

"Katlean."

"I am doing my makeup. Indisposed. Indeed," said Enid.

"Katlean and Horace. And two of the kids. Jessica has to stay in town to be in a play. Katlean said to tell you hello, it wasn't important, they are already at about exit 51. Call her back if you want. They'll wonderful. I'm glad you called. We'll get together. You have our number. We'd love to see it."

"Who was that?" Enid asked from the bedroom.

"Marshall. His house is done. First weekend. He wants us to see it. Maybe we can stop by at noon before going back. I told him we'd see him out there."

Enid emerged from the bedroom.

"You look fabulous," Richard said.

She waggled her wicker basket back and forth. "See my kerchief? I'm Little Bo Peep. Ready for the country."

"Don't let the wolf get you."

"You bad boy. Actually, I'm really looking forward to just sitting out on the deck, drink in hand, looking out at the ocean in the distance while the farmers plow the fields. Just the two of us."

"We'll get some red wine," she said.

"Yes."

He was unbolting the front door locks to the apartment when the phone rang one last time. Enid answered it.

"Oh hi, Phil. Actually, we're just leaving. No, we can hardly wait. The smell of manure. All that fresh see us out there."

"Oh."

The phone rang again.

"Hello? Marshall. Oh no, that's just fine. We're just getting ready to leave. You coming out to the Hamptons? Great. That's really great. Well, we'll see you out there. No kidding. No kidding. That's air. She got what? No kidding. That's great. That's wonderful. Oh, we've got to get together. Really. I'm so impressed. She's been waiting for this for a long time. Okay. Well, we'll see you out there. I can hardly wait to see her."

Enid hung up the phone.

"What happened?" Richard asked.

"The bank promoted Marla to vice president," she said.

"A long time coming," he said.

"She's so happy. I told him we'd see them out there."

Enid and Richard went out into the hall, locked the apartment behind them, and took the elevator down to the basement where they got into their car and headed out. It was five p.m., the afternoon sun was just beginning to set behind the tall buildings, and Richard drove across to Third Avenue and then up and over the 59th Street Bridge. There were clear skies. The temperature was in the sixties. It was going to be a wonderful weekend. They'd walk along the beach. Maybe do some horseback riding. Play a little tennis.

Two hours later, they made a right off Montauk Highway onto Mecox Road and headed down toward the beach. As they turned onto Halsey Lane, Enid issued a deep sigh. She leaned her head onto Richard's shoulder. They were just a few hundred yards from their house in Bridgehampton.

"Look at all these cars parked on the road," Richard said. "I've never seen so many cars."

"Somebody must be having a party," Enid said.

The crowd of cars was thickest on the street in front of their house. The police were already there, giving out parking tickets.

Richard slowed the car down until he was alongside a policeman. "What's going on, officer?" he asked.

"Can't have this many people parking their cars like this," the officer said. "Need a permit. How many people did you tell you'd see out here?"

"What?" asked Richard.

He swung the car into the driveway. There, on their front lawn and deck, were everybody he and Enid had spoken to all during that day and all week before. He had told every one of them they would see them out there. So now, here they were, all smiling and waving. Maybe a thousand of them. "HEY, RICHARD!" one of them shouted. "HERE WE ARE."

Richard didn't recognize him.

Richard didn't recognize him.

"Who is that?" Enid wanted to know.

Richard popped the trunk, got out of the car, took out Enid's wicker basket, a suitcase and his brief case. He looked up. It was so crowded, people were falling from the deck into the bushes. Several people were naked and running around on the front lawn.

"Not a clue," he said.

Watch Out

Everything Has Rounded Corners And Thick Padding But It Was Not Always Thus

By Dan Rattiner

For the last twenty-five years, the single, strongest moral imperative has been to live life to the fullest for as long as you can, then, when you decide your body has given out and it's not worth living anymore, die peacefully with all your friends around. That's the way to go.

It wasn't always so. And I would like to offer the following examples from my childhood, when the main moral imperative was an abstract concept, like dying while defending freedom or dying in the good grace of the Lord. It has been a considerable journey.

When I was a year old, I got my head caught in the bars of my crib and could not get it out. I was stuck that way for the better part of two hours before my parents finally got the fire department to come and saw the wooden slats so I could be freed.

Getting your head caught in the crib slats was fairly common back then. That's how they made cribs. You had to learn not to put your head through and then turn it sideways.

The grammar school I went to was the South Mountain Elementary School in Millburn, New Jersey. The school sat on a hill and it had a broad lawn that sloped down toward the street. It was a great sleigh-riding hill. But you had to keep an eye out for cars. If you were zipping down the hill as one came down the street, you had to drag your shoes into the snow behind yourself to come to a quick stop. Otherwise your sleigh would take you right out into the street and you'd get squished. That happened once to a kid named Fred.

One summer, a bulldozer and some construction people came and made a flat, hard area up against the school where they then paved and put up poles, basketball backboards and hoops. There were four of them, so you had two courts side by side and ball bounced really fast down and across the street to the front lawn of the people across the street.

Sleigh riders also went faster now. They hadn't thought of that. The kids would just have to be much more careful.

Sometimes these two side-by-side basketball courts got used for other purposes. If you stood at center court, for example, and you had some wires that went from your right hand to a model airplane at the side of the court, your friends could flip the propeller of the little .049 O. K. Cub Gasoline engine, and, making a hell of a racket, you could get it to take off and then operate it in level flight about three feet off the ground, making a series of full circles with you in the center. The only dangerous thing was the propeller. Once it started up you had to keep your hand out of there or you could lose a finger. It was also a good idea to stay clear of the plane as it went around and around. At top speed it would be going about twenty

I have this scar on my back to this day... because the board of education built a four-foot high chain link fence with spikes on the top on the edge of a playground.

if you tried a long shot and missed the backboard entirely, at one end the ball would bounce off the side of the school but at the other end the ball would bounce down the hill and out into the street. Since the hill was steeper than it had been, the miles an hour.

Another popular activity up on the basketball courts was baseball. Once, playing left field, I drifted back and back under a fly ball, leaped up against the wall and snagged it in the web of my glove to rob the hitter of a home run.

Unfortunately, the wall I leapt up against was a four-foot high chain link fence located six feet from the auditorium windows so that those up on the basketball court wouldn't walk over and either accidentally or on purpose kick in the gymnasium windows. Remember, bulldozers had leveled the ground here long after the school was built. The gym windows on this side were at knee level. Anyway, the chain link fence had those crossed spikes on the top to make it more difficult to climb over. It did not make it more difficult, however, for a left fielder to leap up and come down on the spikes of the fence.

I impaled myself on the top of this fence, then pushed my way free, but fell to the ground in pain.

The other kids came over. I showed them the ball in the web of my mitt. But they were more interested in the T-shirt that had been jammed into a hole in my back. They carried me home to my mother who, horrified, put me in the car and drove me to the doctor who removed the T-shirt, announced that he could see my lung — which I hadn't managed to puncture — and sewed me up with two crossed stitches. I have this scar on my back to this day, the scar of a puncture wound from which I almost died because the board of education built a four-foot high chain link fence with spikes on the top on the edge of a playground.

It was great being a teenager back then. When I got my driver's license, it coincided with a decision by Detroit to build what they called muscle cars.

Here's what a muscle car was. Build a standard

Chevrolet four-door sedan — no seatbelts, of course — then, for the teenagers, drop in a 488-cubic inch V8 engine of the sort they use at drag strips. Don't waste the money on disk brakes, anti-sway suspension or power steering, the kids won't pay for it. It's unsafe? That's part of the thrill.

Muscle cars were built for about eight years in the late 1960s and early 1970s. They had names like Firebird and Barracuda but not many of them survive today because after awhile almost all of them crashed and exploded. And the government was getting concerned about all the kids dying in drag races. (Footnote: see the race in the movie Grease with John Travolta.)

If the muscle cars got people thinking about crashes and public safety, the issue was further advanced by the American judicial system. My mother never thought to sue the crib maker or the grammar school. But suddenly, juries were awarding huge amounts of money to people who got their feet tangled up on the sidewalk, slipped, broke a leg and were now in rehab. It's been a very short trip from there to the preciousness of human life and man's right not even to be spoken to sharply.

The late Charlie Vanderveer once told me a story about his first job. He lived in Garden City then, and he had a Harley-Davidson motorcycle that he took out one day (no helmet laws) to go visit a friend working on a construction site. This site was an enormous development of about fifteen hundred residential houses on land that had once been farms. They called it Levittown.

Charlie spent some time with his friend, and while they talked he marvelled at all the brawny young bricklayers and roofers and framers working all over the place. All you heard was hammering. Suddenly, behind him, there was a thump. He turned around. A construction worker was lying motionless on the ground. He had fallen off a roof.

A few people wandered over. Then, an ambulance arrived, and some paramedics loaded the limp form onto a stretcher. They had opened the back of the ambulance and were just about to slide the man in when the foreman arrived and stopped the proceedings. He unbuckled the heavy leather tool belt that was around the unconscious man's waist and pulled it free.

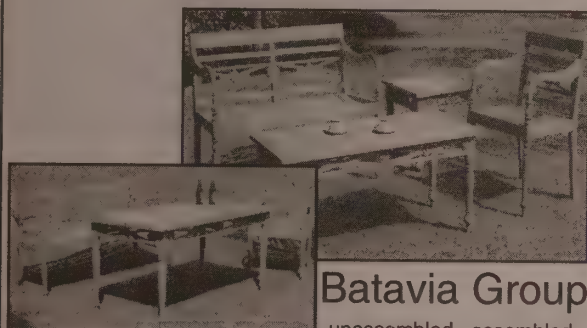

"Anybody here know anything about roofing?" he asked.

Charlie stepped forward. "Yeah, I could do roofing. Doesn't look too hard."

And that's how he got his first job. You don't get job offers on the spot like that today. •

Rocancourt Confesses

But As He Tells 60 Minutes, How Could Anyone Have Believed Me?

By Dan Rattiner

Christopher Rocancourt, who not long ago bilked Hamptonites out of over $70,000, was interviewed by Steve Kroft the other day. Kroft, one of the interviewers on 60 Minutes, had an extraordinary exchange with Rocancourt, who was interviewed in jail. As Andy Warhol once said, everybody is entitled to fifteen minutes of fame. Rocancourt, who had not been interviewed for national television before, got twenty, which is 1/3 of sixty minutes.

Rocancourt's visit to the Hamptons came in the summer of 2000, when he arrived at the Pink House Bed and Breakfast in East Hampton with an entourage of assistants. These included his personal assistant and accomplice, Dante Daniello, his girlfriend, his wife and son. Rocancourt checked into the Pink House under an alias — a standard procedure for swindlers — but not just an alias. Rocancourt claimed to be Christopher D. Rockefeller, heir to a good part of the Rockefeller fortune. He gave the clerk at the desk his office and home addresses and phone numbers, told her it would be all right to put all their charges on a bill to this address, and then went to his suite of rooms.

Rocancourt and Daniello made their way through East Hampton and Southampton for several days, looking for easy marks. In Southampton, they met painter Gines Serran-Pagan, whom they had dinner with. Serran-Pagan was suspicious of the various financial opportunities Rocancourt claimed he could let him in on. Rocancourt apparently picked up on his suspicions as he left dinner early, telling his aide to bring the car around.

Next, Rocancourt came upon a Wall Street stockbroker whom he was able to charm out of $50,000. The broker had made some bad bets recently and was strapped for cash. Rocancourt told him there was a terrific investment opportunity his family was privy to and he could let the broker in on it, or, alternately, he could simply arrange to lend the broker a million dollars. Almost no interest. All the broker had to do to show that 25% — and this was as safe as a walk in Herrick Park.

In fact, they were in the park, the one behind the East Hampton Waldbaum's. Rocancourt had invited the woman to play tennis with him at his "club," but at the last minute told her all the courts were full and so they'd play here in the public park. She forked over the $15,000 anyway.

Rocancourt got arrested in East Hampton, but not for these major swindling operations. He was arrested because the Pink House called the cops saying the Rockefeller credit was no good. He owed them about $4,000. Of course, when they told him, he checked out and moved on.

As it turned out, he moved over to the Mill-Garth Inn in Amagansett, but nobody knew that, and so when he checked in as "Rockefeller" again he was able to start over fresh. No problem.

The police caught him when, after leaving the Serran-Pagan dinner, he was followed back to the Mill-Garth Inn. They arrested him there. The charges? False personation and theft of services. He owed almost $20,000 in bills to the local B and

Bs. They kept him overnight, he got arraigned in the morning, posted $45,000 in bail, and then failed to show up at the East Hampton Town Justice Court a month later. A warrant was then issued for his arrest. Justice Court knew nothing at all about the swindling and larceny activities. Had they known, he was a serious candidate for the million-dollar loan was provide Rocancourt with a certified check for $50,000.

Rocancourt then met a woman in East Hampton whom he bilked out of $15,000. It was a straightforward investment with a high return. The Rockefellers always get a high return — at least they would have held him longer. But since they didn't, he had been free to go.

Soon it turned out that Rocancourt had performed swindling operations in towns and cities all over America. A Frenchman with a lower middle class background — he worked as a waiter in restaurants — he had come to America, the land of the free and the brave, and had swindled his way through Los Angeles, Palm Springs and several other locations before landing in the "Fabulous Hamptons."

In the spring of 2001, however, Rocancourt surfaced in a posh hotel in British Columbia, Canada, where he was in the process of swindling a woman out of about $80,000. The Canadian Mounted Police arrested him and his entourage and this time they kept him. He is in a Canadian prison, awaiting trial on a felony charge and it was there, with Kroft on the telephone on one side of the glass and Rocancourt on the other, that the 60 Minutes interview took place.

Rocancourt was incredulous at what people had believed. He freely admitted his crimes. But he said it was all just a joke.

"How could anybody possibly believe that I, a Frenchman, was a Rockefeller? Are there Rockefellers in France? I don't think so. And what about my accent? Rockefellers don't have accents. If people are gullible, is that my fault? I cannot be convicted of any crimes."

This is, I suppose, the EVERYBODY IS JUST SO STUPID DEFENSE. It's a defense, I guess, though I wonder what his court-appointed barrister thinks about it. Maybe he told the barrister something else and they are planning a different defense. Maybe he was just trying to con Kroft.

It wasn't so long ago that the local police would go through town trying the front doors of all the stores and, if one were not locked, they would call the owner at his home and tell him to come on down and lock it up.

Those were the days when the Hamptons were just an ordinary resort and farming community and the things in the stores were moderately priced and really not worth stealing.

Today, the stores have triple bolts, alarm systems, night watchmen and, if you want to buy a handbag, it might cost $1,000. So we get a much higher class of burglar now, probably a bit more of them, and these Rockefeller family members who might or might not be who they say they are.

As my mother always said, don't get too chummy with strangers. It's still good advice.

Happy Birthday

Maybe Releasing A Whole Lot Of Pigeons Is A Better Idea

By Dan Rattiner

Last week, Lynne Nowick, a member of the Suffolk County Legislature, proposed a bill that would severely limit the use of helium balloons in this county. The proposal was greeted with snickers and guffaws. An article in The New York Times the next day treated the story like some kind of weirdo thing, like the time a burglar after throwing a manhole cover through a jewelry store window at three o'clock in the morning setting off the alarm, scooped up the diamond necklaces and ran back out into the street where he fell down the manhole. They found him there that morning with a broken leg.

In fact, helium party balloons do need to be regulated and Lynne Nowick is to be congratulated for bringing up this proposal.

I go out to the beach almost every day. And almost every day, I see some sort of party balloon, still partially inflated, flapping on the sand like a beached Portuguese Man o' War. Good Luck is written on the side of one. Happy Birthday is on another.

Not only is this a sad thing for us who go to the beach to come upon because it litters the beach and befoils the environment, but also because it marks an event we somehow missed out on. Poor us. Party's over. Everybody went home.

On the other hand, these balloons are a clear danger to marine life. Turtles and crabs can surely get caught up in these things. Birds might peck at them and eat the mylar before realizing they should not have done so. I have spoken to both environmentalists and fishermen who say they see sea life that has died encountering these strange balloons almost every day.

And all this happens because a party giver wants a festive party. The event planner is told to arrange for the delivery of balloons, which are then filled with helium and festively festooned around the property. At the end of the affair, the balloons that remain are supposed to be gathered up and popped, but instead are often deliberately released

I don't know if this would work for people. Most of the other legislators at the county meeting, interviewed by the Times reporter, said with some circumspection that they would consider the matter seriously. Suffolk County has been at the forefront of safety and environmental law. Twenty years ago, laundry detergent with phosphates was banned. Three years ago, Suffolk was the first county in the nation to ban telephone use in cars without an earpiece.

An opponent to the plan who spoke at this meeting said she did not know what the problem was. She said it was a big waste of time and there was no known case where any sea creature had died because of a helium balloon, though it was true she had not gathered statistics. She also described the exhilaration that people feel, referring to the recent opening of a shopping mall, when one thousand helium balloons were released into the sky. There was no feeling like this. Five balloons just wouldn't do it. She would vote against the plan.

Lynne Nowick suggested that in place of balloons, people who want to create this exhilaration release a thousand pigeons into the sky. Not only would the resulting exhilaration be the same, but the pigeons would be recyclable. They would return to their homes — we're talking white homing pigeons here — and be available to float off into the stratosphere to let the neighbors know that here, today, there was this wonderful time. Then they get too close to the sun, a leak develops, and they drop down back to earth.

Ms. Nowick's proposal would limit the use of these balloons to just five at any affair. A big, happy time indeed. Maybe just a small, happy time.

for another event that needed some exhilaration. After a few days rest, of course.

I have another idea. If it is exhilaration we are after, how about allowing a thousand balloons to be launched into the sky and then a thousand members of the national guard to raise their rifles and shoot them all down. Now THAT would be a real exhilaration.

In some ways, the whole thing reminds me of sex and marriage. The sex is a moment of exhilaration. Then that passes. After that, the marriage is a lifetime of dirty diapers, dirty dishes and bills. What goes on at the beach after these balloons lose their buoyancy and float back to earth, or back to the sea to be washed up onto the beach, is, frankly, not worth the exhilaration.

Perhaps a really good idea might be to invent a new kind of substance for balloons that is inflatable but biodegradable, perhaps of limited strength so the balloons won't go very far and finally, be bird food. Now that's a research project for a big corporation like General Electric where progress is our most important product. We get an exhilaration and we feed the birds.

The Hated Dot-Commers

A West Coast Example Of Why It's Better To Just Get Along With People

By Dan Rattiner

I am visiting my daughter in San Francisco. She, her husband and their daughter, who will soon be one year-old, all have their birthdays within forty days. It is a time of celebration although, as my daughter points out, they are all different signs.

I make periodic visits to my daughter here. I consider the fact that she moved to San Francisco a plus. It could have been Portland or Minneapolis or Detroit. She wanted a hip town and she got the best.

San Francisco keeps going through changes and by showing up occasionally, I get to see them in a kind of freeze-frame perspective. Two years ago, the dot-com craze hit this city broadside, with a huge invasion of computer types arriving from who knows where earning huge salaries that seemed, to the San Franciscans anyway, totally unwarranted. Money was flying around. Certain neighborhoods, favored by them, saw real estate prices go through the roof forcing locals out and suddenly, all these yuppie-types were moving in along with ultra chic restaurants, clothing stores, coffee shops and so on that the remaining locals could not afford. Spaces that had been soup kitchens or free medical advice outfits got forced out, sometimes on only a few days' notice, and companies with names like Gadzooks.com replaced them. San Francisco is on the leading edge of charity towards the less

Stories made the papers of how local charities — society's elite here are very old money people who hold benefits — approached the dot-commers and were given a token fifty bucks. It made the papers. SUVs, the vehicles of choice for the dot-commers, were vandalized. One of them, in my daughter's neighborhood, got "keyed," that is, a car key run hard along one side of it, cutting through to the bare metal.

The message was clear.

Go home dot-commers. There was spray paint on walls with this phrase or something like it.

Despite all the resentment, however, it was not hard for young up-and-coming local young people to see the neighborhoods undergoing gentrification, and many of them got in early, bought a small house, and saw what they bought immediately increase in value. Still, the hatred for the dot-commers was boundless.

Now I come out to find that the wave of dot-commers has not only subsided, but has virtually collapsed. Dot-commers are being fired. Dot-commers are fleeing the area. I heard one story of a bounced dot-commer stuck with an expensive house he bought turning down a job offer from a restaurant where he could have waited on tables. He could not bear to work at a place he had patronized and thrown hundred dollar bills around just a year earlier.

I asked some of my daughter's friends how much of the dot-com population remains and the estimates, according to them, are that about one out of three are all that is left. It was a big shakeout. A web site where you could send dead flowers to your soon to be ex, though the recipient of millions of investment dollars two years ago, just didn't cut it, pardon the pun. I asked my daughter's friends if they feel badly about the dot-commers leaving or about their fate. The question is greeted with a kind of stare out into the middle distance. I think they haven't sorted all this out yet.

I guess the message is simple, though. People are the same everywhere. And no wonder the charities were getting token fifty-buck donations. This was not exactly old money. The investment bucks had been rolling in for only a year or two. Maybe it would be easy come, easy go. They weren't ready yet to make big donations.

And it was easy come, easy go. Suddenly, with the wave of dot-com money over, neighborhood gentrification either stopped in its tracks or went the other way, the place returning more to the ethnic, lower middle class neighborhoods they once were. For the locals, who love San Francisco, this was just fine. Or not fine. I forgive them.

On a more microscopic level, another change I've noticed here in San Francisco is that the locals' attitude toward cell phones is now very different from that in New York. In New York, people consider the use of a cell phone in public a major breach of manners. It is marginally okay if you are walking along, provided you cup your hand over the mouthpiece and speak so as not to bother those around you. But if you are with any other person it is considered an insult, and people make their objections known. What are they supposed to do, twiddle their thumbs? Here in San Francisco, those accompanying people on cell phones seem perfectly content to wait until the call ends. And if there is another one, they wait for that, too.

I broached this phenomenon with my daughter. She agreed there was a difference. Together we advanced some theories.

People in San Francisco still think of being on a cell phone as cool/leading edge. Being with someone on a cell phone is cool/leading edge.

The dot-commers taught them that cell phones were a way to wealth. Perhaps using one is a way to wealth. It worked for the dot-commers. For awhile, anyway.

A high percentage of people in San Francisco work from home. It's too nice outside here, all year round, for people to be cooped up in offices. At the laundromat or at lunch they still have business calls they have to make. It's okay. Hey. This is the West Coast.

San Franciscans are very laid back. It IS a major breach of etiquette but they don't get all that upset with the person on the phone. The person will soon be off. They don't have much else to do, anyway.

My daughter suggested the last two explanations were the most likely. I don't know. Excuse me, I have to take a call.

Paris

dirigible and the gasoline in the engines, and purchase supplies. Then, after an hour, they would take off and fly to another airfield in Iceland, then to one in Ireland, and finally to France. They expected the flight to take five or six days. Flying teams had already tried this and failed, though never from Montauk. This was the first attempt.

The team planned to wait in Montauk for good weather conditions for as long as a month if necessary, but found the day they wanted when they awoke on the morning of May 14, 1919. The wind was strong and blowing from the west. The sun was shining. What conditions would be over the Atlantic they did not know and could not find out — there was no weather forecasting back then — but they decided this was their chance. Climbing up into the dirigible in its hangar, they dropped ropes to whomever they could round up and shouted down to them to walk them out into the sunlight. They started one of the engines. It coughed and sputtered. The time had come.

There is no account of the launch other than the sketchy description of it in the logbook of the copilot, but it went uneventfully. Given the size of the dirigible, seventy-feet high and a hundred-feet long, it is likely that about twenty strong men participated in the launch. And so off it went, its ropes dragging below it, gliding across Fort Pond and up into the sky and over Fort Hill to the northwest. It would never be seen in one piece again.

No photographs exist of the demise of the C-5, but coming into St. Johns, Newfoundland, they ran into a storm that included rain, lightning and high winds. They had to land there, since gasoline, helium and supplies were low, but they were unable to steady the craft over the airfield and the men on the ground, able only occasionally to grasp one or another of the ropes, could not properly hold it. Finally, the crew released enough gas to bring the ship down, but it banged around on the rocks, and in spite of all efforts of the flying crew, some of whom came down the ropes to help, the C-5 became damaged and, finally, wrecked. Among other things, during this landing attempt, Lt. Commander E.W. Coil broke his ankle and would need medical assistance. Though everyone survived, the flight was over.

Six years after this failed attempt, millionaire developer Carl Fisher bought Montauk, brought in a work crew of several thousand workers, and proceeded to build many of the buildings that are in use in Montauk today. He wanted to make Montauk into a summer resort city, the Miami Beach of the North. And for his commercial downtown, he chose the flat open space between the Atlantic Ocean and Fort Pond with the now abandoned airfield on it. He took a pencil and marked on a piece of paper a grid of roads for downtown, indicated where there would be stores and hotels and apartment buildings, and he had his workmen rip out the old abandoned airfield structures and cart them away.

Downtown Montauk would shortly have paved roads, concrete curbs and (pink!) sidewalks, movie theatres and churches, office buildings, markets and restaurants. And people arriving in Montauk in 1927 would have no idea that an airfield existed where the downtown was being built.

All that would remain of the airfield and the attempted trans-Atlantic crossing were the photographs, the memories of those who had been there and a few military and civilian documents now saved in museums. The flight log was never returned to Montauk. But the failed attempt was reported upon when the fliers returned to America and newspapers around the country printed some of the entries from the log.

Then, exactly one month later, two RAF officers, piloting a twin engine bomber, took off from Newfoundland and crash landed in a bog in Ireland making the first official non-stop Atlantic crossing by air. They claimed the 10,000 pounds from the Daily Mail.

But the $25,000 prize offered by Monsieur Orteig, to fly from New York to Paris non-stop, remained unclaimed. On May 1, 1927, Charles A. Lindbergh, taking off from Roosevelt Field further up Long Island, flew the Spirit of St. Louis non-stop, all alone and for 38 hours without falling asleep, to land at Orly Airport in Paris, where an adoring crowd of a hundred thousand people carried him off in triumph. A day later, he claimed the $25,000 prize. And the French millionaire personally paid it to him.

Next Wednesday, May 1, the grandson of Charles Lindbergh, Erik Lindbergh, will make a new attempt to fly solo from Long Island to Paris. He will leave Republic Airport in Farmingdale at exactly 9:32 am, the same time his grandfather left seventy-five years ago, and will land in Paris 20 hours later. His grandfather took 33 hours. Erik's plane cruises at 184 miles an hour, almost twice the speed of his grandfather's plane, is state-of-the-art and has every conceivable safety feature imaginable. It was built of glass and carbon composite instead of steel tubing, fabric and wood, and cost more than a quarter million dollars (Charles Lindbergh's plane cost $10,000). Its crossing will be featured as a documentary entitled LINDBERGH FLIES AGAIN on the History Channel to be broadcast May 20 from 9-11 pm. •

SPRING BREAK IN THE HAMPTONS (FOR DOGS)

By Diane Guest

The stress of daily life can really take its toll on a dog. If your canine companion seems stressed out maybe it is time you sent him on spring break. Hampton Resorts and Hospitality now offers vacations for dogs and their owners biannually at the Atlantic Hotel in Southampton. Beginning last weekend, the Urban Pooch Getaway will be offered one weekend in April and October for New York's canine elite and their families. Spring break gets your urban pooch out of the city and to the Hamptons for a weekend of socializing and relaxing by the beach.

Spring break activities include playing in the five-acre yard of the Atlantic, running on the beaches and opportunities to meet and greet other dogs and doggie lovers. Other event highlights for dogs include trying new toys and tasting new treats such as Blonde with Beagle's energy bars, Doggie De Lites snacks and Howlin' Moon treats. Fun events for owners include raffles for upscale gifts, a private cocktail party at Almond Restaurant and meeting the rescue dogs of the World Trade Center.

The cocktail party at Almond Restaurant went off without a hitch - if you don't count the dogs that were behaving badly sneaking sips of wine and starting fights in the bar. The highlight of the cocktail party was the raffle where everybody won expensive and exclusive doggie products including a Faux Pearl the party as much as their owners.

Collar by Chic Doggie, Sherpa bags, doggie cologne by Saks Fifth Avenue, a hotel stay in New York from the Ritz Canine and a red toile bed and day-glo collars

The Suffolk County Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was on site with their canines and displays and they spoke about their work at the World Trade Center. Staying the weekend was "Bear," the first rescue dog at the World Trade Center and Captain Scott Shield who at the cocktail party commented on the work and function of the rescue dogs at the WTC.

Local restaurants participated by giving chef-prepared doggie bags to diners that participated in the weekend. The Star Room, Rowdy Hall, Almond, Red Bar, 95 School Street and Saracen all offered take home bags so your pet could have a delicious dinner, too.

The Urban Pooch Getaway is the brainchild of David Waxner, co-owner of Hampton Resort and Hospitality. His dog, Bob the terrier, was the inspiration. David figured that he could not be the only person who acted as if his dog was his child, so in an attempt to get these doggie loving pet owners together he came up with the idea for a doggie getaway.

Prices for the event are $210 to $290 per night for a double occupancy room and each dog is allowed to bring up to two people for no extra charge. One additional dog can come along for an extra $40. The stylish, boutique hotel, The Atlantic, is located at 1655 Route 27 in Southampton and can be reached at 631-283-6100.

by The Four Paws Club. Other raffle prizes included coats, collars, leads, harnesses, travel bags, doggy photography, luxury goody baskets, grooming services, baskets of goodies, veterinarian advice, pet treats and leather goods. The party concluded with everyone receiving a goody bag stuffed with exclusive doggie treats and products. The dogs seemed to enjoy

HANGIN' WITH GEORGE CAN GET YOU INTO HOT WATER.

All I know is, awhile ago, I went into Kazdin Pools & Spas for some pool chemicals.

While wandering around the store, waiting my turn, this charming guy with a big red mustache starts a whole conversation with me about the benefits of spas.

The next thing I know, he's taking me somewhere in his car.

We get to this place (he says its his home).

In the back yard are a woman, two young girls and a Golden Retriever, (mustache says, his wife & daughters; won't tell me who the retriever is) in this beautiful steaming bubbling contraption.

Anyway, they invited me into it. It was wonderful.

Every muscle relaxed. The tension in my body disappeared.

I haven't felt this good in years.

It's been about three weeks that I'm here. And, I know these people would like all of us (we're now 47) to buy our own spas and go home.

But, they're too polite to ask.

One of us even overheard the guy in the mustache tell his wife that someone named Marquis said "George, maybe you should just have a sale."

awards dinner on Wednesday at Giorgio's in Baiting Hollow.

Chronicle Books is publishing Hamptons Bohemia by Helen A. Harrison and Constance Ayers Denne, with a foreword by Edward Albee on June 3. The book is a virtual cultural record of those who popularized this place, including Winslow Homer, John Steinbeck, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Willem de Kooning, Max Ernst, Andy Warhol, George Plimpton, Irwin Shaw, Betty Friedan and dozens of others.

Another stunning book about the Hamptons, due out on May 1, is Beach Houses photographed by Roberto Schezen with text by Michael Webb. In this case, though, the Hamptons are forced to share the limelight with other beachfront homes in California, the Northwest and Florida. There is no comparison, of course.

Lauren Bacall of East Hampton stars in The Fan, a movie with scenes shot on the East End, at the Dan's Papers They Made the Movie Here Film Festival, to be held at Duke Hall, Southampton College at 2:30 p.m. on May 4. Future films will be Ed Burns' She's the One, and Albert and David Maysles Grey Gardens. The films are free and the Film Festival will continue until May 25.

Billy Crystal is back in New York and has started work on Analyze That, a sequel to Analyze This starring Robert De Niro of Montauk.

The Great South Bay YMCA will sponsor a 5k run/walk to raise money for Breast Cancer research and honor the memory of a beloved member of the East End community, Judi Shesh. The event will begin at 10 a.m. at the Great South Bay YMCA in Bay Shore. Call 665-4255 for more information.

More than 80 East End writers will participate in the 25th annual John Steinbeck "Meet the Writers" Book Fair and Art Preview on Friday, May 10 from 4 to 8 p.m. at the Elaine Benson Gallery in Bridgehampton. Writers participating include Peter Mattheissen, Dava Sobel, James Brady, Lynn Sherr and Helen Harrison.

East Hampton's Guild Hall has outstanding programs planned for the summer season. Some of the highlights: famous Hamptons' artists exhibit (April 27-July 28); a preview run of NYC cabaret star Eric Comstock's new show Made for the Movies: A Hollywood Songbook (July 3-14); the Landsman/Film Society of Lincoln Center's foreign film series (June through August); Delsener/Slater's concert series (Andrea Marcovicci, Billy Joel, Jane Monheit, etc.); Lee Davis' American Musical Theater series;

The Sheltered Islander

By Sally Flynn

Observations of an Islander # 197

Water Conservation

The Shelter Island Town Board has declared that water conservation rules must be engaged due to low water levels. Well, every old-timer on the island predicted that two years ago with all the new mini-mansions being built.

In addition to the town's conservation rules, I have a few other quasi-brilliant ideas to save water.

Toga Parties: Gather a group of people at one person's house, get naked except for a towel, take turns jumping into the shower for five minutes each, washing only the essentials, get out, dry off, sit down and have coffee and danish. A great way to meet nude, I mean, new people.

One ice cube per drink at all drinking establishments. No water with the whiskey either.

The washing machines at Coecles Harbor must only wash clothes in real time — the timers on those machines have '120 second' minutes. When the washer says 17 minutes to go, figure an hour. Those machines are sucking thousands of gallons of island water through the pants of God knows who.

Stop washing children. What's the point? They just get dirty again in five minutes. For the duration of water restrictions, children may be dusted and have a face wash once a day. The next time it rains, throw them outside naked with a bar of soap.

No more mopping. A terrible waste of water. Just sweep and scrape.

When I lived in San Rafael, California, among the parched hills of Marin County where water conservation is a way of life, the county advised everyone to always have a brick in the toilet tank to make the tank use less water. They also advised, not to flush for just urine. The local stores (my friend James who lived in Novato can vouch for me) had a popular little sign you could buy and hang in your bathroom that read, "In This Land of Fun and Sun, We Never Flush for Number One." And to prevent paper build up, after you made Number 1, you discarded the paper in the waste basket. Charming. In order to comply with conservation and still be sanitary, we all had the tabs in the tank that turn the water blue. The blue water mixed with all the yellow made a brilliant florescent shade of green. This turned out to be very advantageous. My husband never had to turn on the bathroom light at night and wake me up, he just aimed for the glow.

Ahhhhh, California: earthquakes, bricks in your tanks, no water in restaurants, no water anywhere because it's so damn hot all the time. I remember California's four seasons well: Almost Summer, Summer, Still Summer and Christmas.

I did learn one great trick from the Marin County guidelines though: use the water you used to cook with to water your plants. Water from hard-boiling eggs or cooking veggies is full of vitamins and minerals and your plants will love it.

Actually, left over cooking water could be used to wash kids too. Maybe they could adsorb some vitamins through their skin; who cares if they smell like broccoli? They smell anyway.

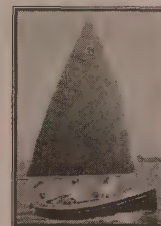

Of course, we could all buy those potable water devices that change salt water to drinkable fresh water. I have noticed that this entire island is surrounded by salt water.

But of course, if we did that, we'd all get water for free. Well, that's just not American.

Brick anyone?

WNET GALA

The Ninth Annual WNET/Channel 13 Gala Benefit was held last Wednesday at the Plaza Hotel. This year the gala was dressed down as black tie and evening gowns stayed in the guests' closets replaced by evening chic. Filmmakers Ric Burns and Ken Burns were honored along with journalist Gwen Ifill, George O'Neill and Phillip Purcell. In my modest spectrum of event coverage this event is quite unique because it has celebrities like Martha Stewart, media heavies like Barry Diller, the movers and shakers of finance like Stan Shuman, and New York society icons like Ann Bass, all together and contributing.

1. Ken Burns and Barry Diller 2. Henry Kravis and Marie Jose 3. Amanda Burden and Charlie Rose 4. Martha Stewart 5. Ric and Ken Burns 6. Barry Diller, Tina Brown and Harold Evans 7. Betty and Walter Cronkite 8. Liz Smith

WARM-UP PARTY FOR GARDEN GALA

The party was billed as a warm-up for Garden Gala XV the popular Oceanside event to benefit Body Positive, the HIV/AIDS service organization. But with committee member and noted chef Frank Tramontano at the helm it was more like a night in Tuscany. Tramontano treated his guests to dozens of Italian regional specialties from crostini to clam & olive bruschetta. Garden Gala XV is once again hosted by Jerry Della Femina and Judy Licht at their oceanfront East Hampton home and will take place on Saturday, June 8th.

MUSIC FESTIVAL OF THE HAMPTONS 2002

Photos & Text by Kimberly Goff

The Music Festival of the Hamptons hosted committee members, sponsors and friends for an evening of musical celebration at the Lotos Club in N.Y.C. on Monday, April 15. Eleanor Sage Leonard, founder of the Music Festival, once again, orchestrated the evening. Artistic Director, Lukas Foss entertained the assembled classical music buffs with stories from his youth. The program included a performance with music by Chopin, Debussy, Bernstein, and our own Lukas Foss. Kitty Carlisle Hart graciously chaired the event. Be prepared for another sublime season of music brought to us by the Music Festival of the Hamptons. This sponsors dinner prepares and reminds us of the main events here in Bridgehampton.

By The Glass... With Susan Simm

Red, Red Wine

Someone once said that there's nothing worse than knowing a little bit about wine. I disagree. Knowing nothing is far worse. And while a few things learned from books will doubtless enhance your pleasure, the trick to becoming a real "expert" is simply to go out and sample wines. As with so many things in life, here a taste is worth a thousand words, or, at the very least as illustrated by this column, a few hundred.

"They're all great," replied Kip Bedell, a.k.a. "Mr. Merlot," when asked his opinion about three of Bedell Cellars' recent releases. Of course. A winemaker that says anything else would lack the passion and confidence required for the job. And besides, after being in the business for over twenty years, he should know when a wine is a winner.

Kip and his wife Susan were among the original pioneers here on the North Fork, establishing their vineyard just seven years after Alex and Louisa Hargrave. Now totaling 32 acres, Bedell was sold to Michael Lynne, president of New Line Cinema and noted wine enthusiast, in August of 2000. But Michael also knows quality when he sees it, and so Kip remains winemaker, producing only 8500 cases annually, thus maintaining the hands-on approach that has served him so well in the past.

Bedell is best known for its reds – Merlot in particular – and the recently released 1998 Merlot and 1998 Cupola (a meritage, or Bordeaux-style blend) underscore this reputation.

"The Cupola is drinking well now but will only improve with some bottle age," said Kip. This lovely, well-balanced wine, with its long, smooth finish, has a lively acidity and, despite what Kip called "assertive tannins," I did not find them at all overwhelming. Redolent of dark fruit, such as blackberry and plum, enjoy it with grilled steak, lamb, game or simply by the glass. Only a small quantity was made, so stock up and cellar it to avoid missing out. Retail for $27 at the winery. Highly recommended.

Bedell's 1998 Merlot, aged 14 months in American oak, is "typical of our style," said Kip. "Pretty fruit, cherry aromas, and ripe, soft tannins." Expect concentrations of cherry and spice from this fruity, medium-bodied wine. Easy to drink, the '98 is a splendid example of what Kip is famous for. As Wine Spectator enthused in 1999, "Winemaker Kip Bedell makes Long Island's best red wines." This Merlot is no exception. Retail for a bargain $18 at the winery.

Reds are fine but Bedell is also establishing a reputation for its Alsatian whites. Released on April 1, Bedell's 2000 Gewürztraminer is an elegant wine with a seductive floral nose and notes of pear, rose petals and grapefruit. It pairs well with spice-infused dishes and delivers a nice mix of citrus at the finish. But while Bedell's is well-made and supremely dry, I still prefer the succulent Corey Creek 2000 Gewürztraminer reviewed here last week (the two wineries are both owned by Mr. Lynne) made by Eric Fry, which made any comparison almost unfair in light of my infatuation with the latter. Still, it is highly recommended for those looking for a little less fruit and a little more austerity. Retail for $12.99 at the Bedell winery.

Mark your calendars: New York Institute of Technology's annual scholarship fundraiser, the Gold Coast Food & Wine Classic, promises once again to live up to its name. This year, the three-day event kicks off on May 1 at the de Seversky mansion in Old Westbury for a wine tasting and continues on May 3 at the renowned Manhattan restaurant Le Cirque 2000 where executive chef Pierre Schaedelin will prepare signature dishes to accompany wines from Joseph Phelps and Bouchard Père et Fils. On May 4, the whirlwind concludes back at de Seversky with a Black-Tie celebration, including a silent and live auction. For further information, contact Jeanine LaRocca 212-843-1738. Cheers.

Pasta Perfect: Pagano's of Southold

By Jolie Trueman-Honey

There isn't much to say that's positive about my first marriage except, perhaps, that my ex-mother-in-law was a really terrific cook. Born and raised in a little town outside of Naples, she was an artist in the kitchen. And in the years that I was married to her son, she taught me two things: an incredible appreciation of all foods Italian, and how to make sauce (which she always referred to as "gravy"). She was extremely critical of Italian food that wasn't prepared in her own kitchen.

Well, ex-Mama Elena, wherever you are, I'd like you to try Pagano's in Southold. I'll bet even you would give it the "thumbs up!"

Located on the Main Road just west of the Feather Hill shops, Pagano's is famous on the North Fork. It's that perfect blend of casual dining: enough atmosphere that you can enjoy spending the evening, but relaxed enough that jeans and khakis do the trick. While you enter through the pizzeria, make no mistake; this is a charming restaurant. The decor is a relaxing forest green and peach, the tables adorned with matching linens.

Our friends, Karen and Jim, who live in Southold, have eaten here many times before and were glad to join us for our first visit. Our waitress Theresa brought over the specials' board and the feast began.

We decided to share a few appetizers. The Chef's Choice is a grilled Portabella mushroom topped with asparagus and bacon and finished with a saute of garlic, shallots and white wine. For lovers of calamari, the rings were delicately fried and extremely tender, served with Pagano's own marinara sauce. But my favorite was one of the appetizer specials for the evening: Mussels da Vinci. The mussels were tossed with garlic, plum tomatoes and a spicy sausage, all in a tomato white wine broth. As far as I was concerned, after devouring the mussels, I could have dipped a loaf of bread in that broth and called it quits!

The salad we chose was also a special that night but should be incorporated into the regular menu because it was indeed delicious: fresh romaine was tossed with gorgonzola cheese and slices of sun-dried tomato, and doused with a light homemade vinaigrette. The salad, which could easily serve two or three, was then topped with a mound of "frazzled onions."

It should be mentioned that if you've never eaten a traditional meal in an Italian home, it can be an all-day (or evening) affair. Theresa, and the kitchen staff, headed by chef Frank Huber, made sure that our glasses were always filled and that we had enough time between courses to talk, digest and loosen our belts a notch. The portions are enormous. So if you order an entree for each person, you can feel confident that you will be enjoying at least another meal at home.

We decided to do just that and share. Jim has been "on a veal kick" lately, so for him the choice was easy: veal marsala. A traditional dish, it was prepared beautifully, the veal thin and tender, the mushrooms fresh, and the sauce light with that delicate marsala flavor. Karen had the baked ziti. This is a dish I rarely order out; I can make it myself, and it is a pretty standard choice at mediocre affairs. Well, not at Pagano's! Sure, the pasta (all of which is imported from Italy, by the way) was nicely al dente, and the cheeses were of especially good quality, but that sauce was just...different. I asked Theresa what ingredient made the sauce so savory. She just smiled, said that a lot of people ask that question, and that it's a highly guarded secret known only to Chef Huber and owner Joe Pagano!

I ordered the Blackened Chicken Vino, which seems to meld traditional Italian fare with a Cajun twist. The chicken was quite spicy, yet tender and juicy and served over penne pasta with a zesty sauce consisting of plum tomatoes, garlic and white wine. When I mentioned to our waitress how different this dish was from what one would typically expect in an Italian restaurant, she said that while the traditional dishes are always available, Chef Huber enjoys experimenting with new dishes. (Downtown Saute, which we did not try this evening, is a new dish which has become very popular, she said. It consists of sausage, chicken, spinach, tomatoes and garlic served over pasta in a creamy white wine sauce. I'm trying that one next time!)

My husband John had the House Special and it was something to behold: a bevy of beautiful shrimp, scallops, crabmeat, scungilli, calamari, mussels and clams artfully

North Fork-Critic's Choice

Antares Café. Named for a brilliant star in the Scorpius constellation, this is one of the brightest stars in the North Fork restaurant firmament. Chef/owner Matt Murphy's stylish, art-filled dining room offers highly ambitious and creative dishes. The appetizers alone merit a visit and the entrees make you quickly forget the appetizers. Menu highlights have included bouillabaisse with local fish and shellfish, lightly seared foie gras accompanied by mango and crystallized ginger and filet mignon in a cabernet reduction. Chestnut flour gnocchi was another knockout. Duck dishes are always inspired. Desserts keep pace and a cheese plate is often available. Prices range from $18-28. Brewer Yacht Yard, Greenport, 477-8839 (Bradbrook, 6/23/00).

Coeur des Vignes. Outstanding classic French cuisine in a charming timber-beamed house of relaxed elegance. Chef Arie Pavlou's foie gras with papaya, peppercorns, pomegranate and peach schnapps was honored in 2001 by Sante magazine's cooking with spirits competition. Perennial Wine Spectator Award of Excellence winner. Escargots cooked in parsley, garlic butter and white wine sauce tops the list of timeless favorites. Fish specialties frequently fresh from the boat - theirs. Excellent game dishes are similarly acquired. Prix fixe dinners provide excellent value. Entrees $18-$31. Main Road, Southold. 765-2656. (Bradbrook, 10/15/01)

Cooperage Inn. Chefs Liam and Hegeman carry the banner of North Fork cuisine. Freshness of local ingredients evident in every bite, produce comes from neighboring farmstands. Inspired appetizers, topped by pan-seared fresh mozzarella over spinach with artichoke hearts and plum tomatoes. Homemade dressings enliven fresh salads, notably the house salad of greens, fruits, raisins and nuts. Superb steaks and pastas. Rigatoni ala vodka with pancetta, basil and sage, particularly noteworthy. Cornmeal encrusted Atlantic salmon attains a very high level. Excellent values include grilled double pork chops atop wild mushroom herb stuffing. Owner Jonathan Perkins' stylish country restaurant is a North Fork gem. Entrees $14-$30. Sound Ave. Baiting Hollow. 727-8994. (Simm, 6/29/01).

Il de Beaute. Returning to this restaurant is like returning to France itself. The cooking style is firmly fixed in the Provence region. French onion soup is inspired, one of the best of its kind anywhere. High standard of cooking in dishes like scallops with saffron sauce on a bed of leeks, chicken breast stuffed with lobster meat in champagne sauce, frogs legs and baked stuffed clams served with a light Provencal sauce. Delightful desserts. Wonderful range of crepes. Live music on weekends. Entrees $20-$32. 314 Main Street, Greenport. 631-477-2822. (Bradbrook, 9/7/01).

Do Little's. Very welcoming and unpretentious. An excellent menu for diners interested in fresh, smartly prepared dishes that are not calorically trumped up. Thai mussels in ginger/lemongrass broth hit the mark. Excellent pasta dishes, headlined by justifiably famous Seafood Pasta in white wine sauce, filled with mussels, clams and shrimp over linguine with fresh tomatoes and spinach. Stuffed ravioli with sun-dried tomatoes and mozzarella is beautifully done. Sensibly priced wine list, with a knowing nod to local vintages. Entrees, $12.95-$19.95. Rt. 25, Mattituck Plaza, Mattituck. 298-4000. (Bradbrook, 7/28/01).

La Plage. Obscure geography, sensational cuisine. This sums up owner/chef Wayne Wadington's destination restaurant on Long Island Sound, north of the tiny village of Wading River. No expense spared in the acquisition of top ingredients, local or otherwise. Complex recipes spell highly creative fusion cuisine: New American in heart, French in spirit. Many highlights include: Chilled lobster soup garnished with roe; salad of tart apples with bleu cheese, walnuts and mache; rare yellowfin tuna with homemade potato chips; caramelized jumbo sea scallops with snow crab fritter. Desserts are imaginative and exceptionally well executed. Entrees $17-$28. 744-

9200. (Bradbrook, 8/4/00.)

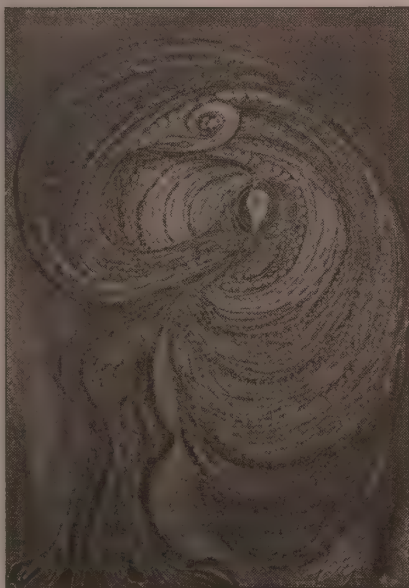

Ross' Rotisserie and Smokehouse. A casual, homey eat-in or take-out spot opened by John Ross, former chef/owner of Ross' North Fork Restaurant. Great rotisserie and crispy fried chicken; marinated, honey-glazed duck legs; hickory-smoked spareribs; homemade soups and chowders; and many cooked-from-scratch side dishes. Every Friday fish fry provides excellent value. A special 6-pound LI duck, cooked crisp, boned and quartered, accompanied by duck sauce and a garnish of apricots and cranberries ($19.99) is available by reservation the day before. Open every day from 12-8. Route 48, Southold, 765-9655. (Simm, 10/5/01).

The Seafood Barge. Deserved reputation among the elite seafood restaurants on Long Island. Owner/manager team of Dick Ehrlich and Betsy Flinn ensure every plate served adheres to a very high standard. Menu highlights include mussels sautéed with garlic and shallots, tomato concasse, tarragon, white wine and cream; shelled lobster pot pie with baby vegetables, crispy duck breast and leg confit in a peach/apple reduction. Desserts range from restrained to decadent. Wine list, heavy on local vintages is a Wine Spectator "New Award Winner." Panoramic views of Peconic Bay complete a very pretty picture. Rt. 25, Southold. Entrees $24-$32. 765-3010. (Bradbrook, 8/3/01).

Touch of Venice. Simplicity, freshness, flavor are the hallmarks here. Named appropriately for cuisine, location on the banks of Mattituck Inlet and an intricate wall mural dominating the dining room. Proprietor Ettore Pennach shares the cooking with son Brian. Among kitchen's highlights: stuffed artichoke, eggplant Sorrentino, filet mignon au jus, with garlic and mushrooms. Lobster meat, a frequent special, is an exciting dish of imaginative complexity. It combines chunks of lobster on a bed of al dente spaghetti with fresh seasonal vegetables topped with basil oil and lemon juice. Entrees $12-$21. Wickham Ave., Mattituck. 298-5851. (Bradbrook, 8/4/00).

Dan's North Fork

Spring's Here. So What's Local?

By Susan W. Simm

As everyone who either lives here or has visited during the growing season knows, the North Fork remains a bountiful source of locally grown fresh produce. While the wine industry is quickly turning many fields into replicas of those found in Napa Valley, there are still many dedicated and diligent fruit and vegetable farmers out there every spring, performing their annual rites of planting, pruning and hoping. Here's what you can expect favorites.

Briermere Farms – long famous for their legendary pies, this sprawling farmstand at the edge of their blossom-filled orchards also stocks springtime staples such as their own rhubarb, spring onions, spinach and an assortment of home grown annuals and perennials. And they are usually the first on the block with tender, early lettuce. Also available are fresh apple cider crushed from their own apples and homemade breads, muffins and preserves. Located at the end of Route 105 and Sound Avenue in Riverhead. Call 722-3931. Open 7 days.

Wells Homestead Farmstand – formerly Skelley's, this well-stocked stand opens the first week of May with fresh spinach, herbs, duck eggs and a good selection of organic produce and lots of annuals. They also grow some of the nicest asparagus around and, sometime in early June, usually have a swell crop of fresh lavender. A little later look for sugar snap and English peas and loads of their beautiful, farm-raised cut flowers. Located on the Main Road in Aquebogue. Call 722-3796.

Bayview Farms – owned and operated by long-time North Fork farmer Brad Reeve, whose family has farmed here for three hundred years, Bayview will be moving – about 500 feet east! – to a beautiful, new building recently erected by Amish craftsmen from Pennsylvania. Reeve grows lovely annuals and right now is stocking everything that's field-grown and locally available: asparagus, horseradish root, beets, spinach, rhubarb and fresh eggs. Located on the Main Road, Aquebogue, east of Wells. Call 722-3077. Open 7 days.

Sang Lee Farms – Owner Fred Lee specializes in Asian greens and mesclun. Their mesclun, greenhouse-grown, is currently available washed with optional fresh, edible petals. Add some greenhouse-grown pea shoots and tender scallions and you have the perfect May salad. Leeks are also currently available as is a selection of potted herbs and, coming up shortly, look for asparagus and field-grown greens. Located on the North Road in Peconic. Call 734-7001.

Harbes Family Farm – the Harbes family, famous for their wonderful Super Sweet sweet corn and, more recently, for their incredible corn mazes in the fall, are getting ready to open their Sound Avenue stand in Mattituck on May 1. Look for local greens, asparagus and a great selection of pansies and other annuals. Call 298-2054.

The above represents only a few of the North Fork's many stands. For additional locations, check the local Yellow Pages, the Peconic Telbook or just take a drive. The scenery is breathtaking this time of year.

arranged over a mound of linguini in a sherry marinara sauce. Once again, the sauce was unique and quite delicious, the portion so large it was almost intimidating!

So what were we doing having desserts? Sometimes you just have to bite the bullet. The two that topped our list were the Italian cheesecake, which was light and not too sweet, and the Creme Brulee, which was more like a thick vanilla custard with a crispy drizzle of caramelized sugar on top. Try to save the room!

In short, a meal at Pagano's is like an invitation to the best Italian home-cooked dinner. Bring your appetite.

Dinners at Pagano's are reasonably priced with pasta dishes from $12.95 to $14.95 (salad included). Entrees, which include salad and pasta, are $13.95 to $18.95. Wines from Martha Clara Vineyards are available by the bottle or glass. For reservations or take-out, call 631 765-6109.

Shop 'til You Drop...With Maria Tennariello

Well, I've been really hit hard with the flu, so this week I spent most of my time recouping. However, have no fear, I can still tell you where to find some of the sales and best deals. Let's shop!

At gallery eclectic on Main Street in Southampton, there is a sale on their selected stock that will run through Monday, April 29. There are beautiful pieces of jewelry that would make the perfect gift for your perfect mom. Mother's Day is right around the corner you know.

Time to get to Stubbs & Wooton for their great spring selection of heels, slippers, mules, slides and new handbags. Located on Jobs Lane in Southampton, open Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

On Windmill Lane in Southampton at Sunrise to Sunset they are still clearing out their winter merchandise to make room for spring/summer. You will find 50% off men's and ladies 2001 summer sportswear, surfboards selling for $50 to $75 off along with winter wetsuits. Their new spring line, Quicksilver, Roxy & Lucy Love clothing and accessories are flying out the door, so hurry for the best selections.

At Whitmores Garden Center & Nursery on Montauk Highway in Watermill they are filled to the sky with trees and shrubs...There is everything from Bonsais to giant oaks. Get going...

Agway Country Garden on Snake Hollow Road in Bridgehampton has sprung into action. The place is packed with new plants, shrubs, trees, vines, and everything to get your garden growing. There is quite a selection of birdfeeders, birdseed and a large pet department with all kinds of goodies for your best friend.

I found a wonderful selection of turquoise jewelry at Billy Martin's on Newtown Lane in East Hampton. It's a great look with a tan, don't you think?

Don't forget the grand opening of Hildreth's Department Stores "Lexington Gallery" in East Hampton on Saturday, May 4 at 1 p.m. Hildreth's is the exclusive dealer of Lexington Home Brands on the East End. Slated to attend the grand event is the New York Times, Furniture Today magazine, Betsy Cameron, local papers and politicians. A light lunch will be served. Hildreth's will be unveiling their spring lines of Lexington home furnishings with some very unique pieces. Don't pass this one up, enjoy the show.

At the Red Horse Plaza look for great savings at the Down Factory Store at the Elegant John. The Elegant John guarantees the lowest down prices in the country and will beat them all...Give he phone order department a call at 1-888-414-DOWN. I picked up a great reversible quilted jacket in Mark, Fore & Strike on Main Street in East Hampton. This versatile jacket comes in red, tan and black with reversible gingham checks and is on sale for $69. A perfect jacket to wear with just about anything and to boot what a buy!

If you happen to be in Montauk this week, you must stop into At Home en Provence located on Tuthill Road. This shop is packed to the rafters with gifts, furnishings and interiors, custom furniture and accessories.

In Sag Harbor on Main Street at Fishers Home Furnishings you will happy to hear that two new shipments have just arrived. This store is so large, (25,000 square feet) it holds tons of fine European reproductions, antiques, and accessories. Check it out...it's worth the trip.

That's it for now friends. Until next week. Ciao and Happy Shopping!

Motorcycles

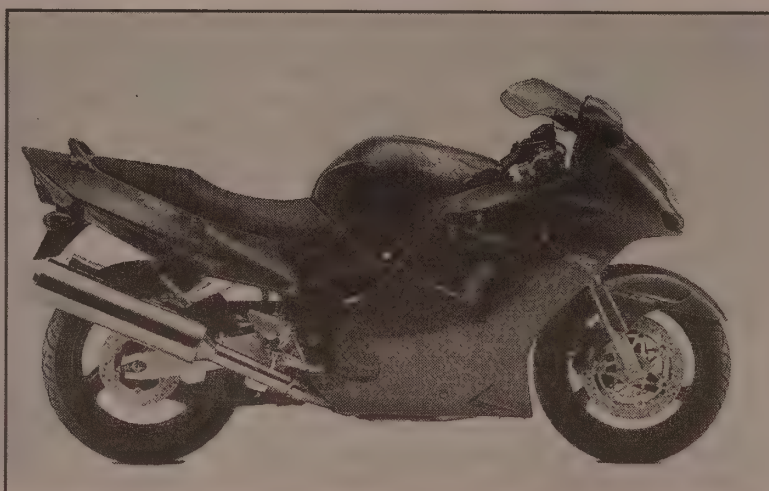

Well, the warm weather is finally here. There is no doubt about it. Today I walked around Boston in flip-flops, shorts and a T-shirt. While strolling around the block heading for the cafeteria to grab a little lunch, my happy day was cut short. I heard an amazing rumble of engines in the distance, which got closer and closer. Right away it was apparent that this was not the sound of a car engine. A car engine makes a low-pitched rumble. This was different; it was more like the sound of a swarm of bees heading my way, a very distinct, high-pitched sound. It was powerful, 1100cc powerful to be exact. It was some lucky hotshot driving around on his brand new black and yellow Honda CBR 1100, with a matching helmet.

Ever since I was very young, I have loved motorcycles. I really think that everybody finds motorcycles attractive in one way or another. But for me, they are the coolest thing that mankind has ever created besides fighter jets. The only difference between fighter jets and motorcycles, in my book, is that a motorcycle is something that is attainable, a fighter jet is not. And no matter how badly you may want to fly a fighter jet, you probably will not get to fly one in this lifetime.

Motorcycles, however, are different. All you need is a license and some money.

Motorcycles are a mixed bag though. On the one hand they are a lot of fun; you get to have the wind blowing in your face while you drive, your senses are enhanced and they take a fair amount of skill to operate. It's like a bicycle on steroids. Not to mention that everywhere you take it people will wonder who that mysterious guy is underneath that helmet. Yes, it is a statistical fact. Motorcycles get you girls.

On the other hand, motorcycles are incredibly dangerous. Almost every rider that I have talked to has had a close call where they were in traffic and a truck missed them by inches, or they lost their balance and went into a slide. Riders love telling these stories. They will pull off their shirts to show you scars and get really excited. But while they are telling you the story, they seem completely oblivious to the fact that they were looking death in the face and then somehow miraculously made it out alive. Sure it makes a great story, but what if it did not work out that way and they were lying six feet under in a box? This single, but very significant fact is what keeps me from getting a bike.

Money is the second reason. Death first, money second. It is because of these mixed feelings that just seeing a motorcycle ruins my day. It is one of those things that you want, but you can't have but you could have, but realistically just can't have - even though you could.

We need a solution for people who want a motorcycle but at the same time don't want to die. We have to find some engineers out there who are willing to make motorcycles really safe and make them really cool. Or they need to figure out some safety device, besides a little plastic hat to prevent your head from going splat against the pavement. If someone were to figure out an answer to this problem he would be instantly rich. There is a huge community of people out there who really want a bike, but don't want to die. This attitude is understandable, if you ask me. So until then, maybe I am just going to have to figure out other ways of fulfilling the desire. Maybe I will just buy the helmet and walk into places and pretend that I have one.

"Hey, nice helmet, what kind of bike do you have?"
"Oh, I have a Rattiner Toesole Ten."

"Really? Never heard of them, are they expensive?"

"Put it this way, buddy, there are only 22 in the world and I have two of them."

Ed Rice Art Show

Edward Rice, an adventuresome American writer who wrote a best-selling 1990 biography of the 19th century British explorer Richard Francis Burton and who was the godfather to Thomas Merton, the monk and author of The Seven Storey Mountain, died on August 18, 2001. He was 82 and lived in Sagaponack, N.Y.

Mr. Rice, who was also a photographer, was almost decapitated by a shotgun wielded by a maharajah on a peacock hunt in India. He was stoned by peasants in Bangladesh. He traveled through Asia and Africa, writing and doing photographic medical reports for the United Nations. "Everything I did was a preparation for Burton," he said in a 1990 interview.

Mr. Rice's biography was called Captain Sir Richard Francis Burton: The Secret Agent Who Made the Pilgrimage to Mecca, Discovered the Kama Sutra, and Brought the Arabian Nights to the West. In a front-page review in The New York Times Book Review, the British novelist Anthony Burgess wrote, "Mr. Rice's telling of the tale - an odyssey really, of the travail and travels" of Burton "and of the unquenchable urge to get at the truth of life that rode above the tale - is first-class."

Mr. Rice founded a magazine for Catholic laymen, Jubilee. His many writings include a score of books, about topics like the Ganges River, ancient Babylon and Margaret Mead. He was also the author of The Man in the Sycamore Tree, a biography of Thomas Merton, a friend.

Attend his "Clothesline Art" sale at #614 Sag Lake Lane (1st right after General Store) Sagaponack on May 4th and 5th 2002. 10am to 3pm. No Early Entry! Rain or Shine! V, MC, Amex, Ca, Ck gladly accepted. For inquiries call Regina of Gardens Etc. at 516-429-8477

COLLAGE AT GAYLE WILLSON GALLERY

Collage, like still lifes (as discussed last week), can be a conventional art form. Not so in the show now at Southampton's Gayle Willson Gallery. Their presence is particularly appropriate in this gallery where material itself rules the roost and where handmade clothing is truly exquisite wearable art. In fact, some of the current collage designs would make equally lovely dresses.

We're referring especially to Joan Miller's work using delicate colors like purple and yellow; the artist juxtaposes this delicacy with vigor manifested in abstract shapes and flowers. The resulting configuration is spirited as well as sensual. (We must also note that we're glad Ms. Miller didn't opt to incorporate any digital effects, if this had even been possible.)

Hera Marashian's collages use process and material in a more literal way: real objects like stamps and tickets from the artist's travels. The resulting designs are attractive, with the painted, muted background adding to the effective ambience.

While the stamps and tickets may be specific, the fragments of written texts are not as concrete and we wonder about their origins.

Wendy Miller also uses a background/foreground concept, counterbalancing photographs of murals in Mexico and natural scenery like mountains. The murals appear as cutouts, the overall effect resulting in a three-dimensional quality.

What is especially interesting is the subject matter itself, the murals serving as visual signs in a developing country where imagery sometimes takes the place of written text. (This critic has found many such examples on trips to Mexico. For example, a school is indicated by murals with figures of children, a restaurant features plates of food.)

Ms. Miller's colors are luscious, capturing the culture's sensibility. This is particularly true in her collage, "Over the Wall," where subtle pinks and blues of a house are juxtaposed with bright reds evoked by the foregrounded flowers. Here we have three layers of perspective, with photographs of trees forming the background. (The dwelling occupies the midground, its position open for thematic speculation.)

"Collage" will be on view at Southampton's Gayle Willson Gallery until May. 6

HONORING THE ARTIST: CAROL SAXE

East Side, West Side. All around the town. That's the motto East Hampton resident Carol Saxe surely must follow, considering that her Manhattan house portraits celebrate the architectural beauty of abodes from St. Luke's Place to Grammercy Park.

The only disadvantage presented by producing these images is the fact that Ms. Saxe must work from photographs or sketches. "When I attempt to paint on the spot, people get very suspicious and think I am casing the joint," she laughs.

No matter. Ms. Saxe is clearly very attached to her subjects. "The town houses, for example, are more like architectural renderings, but not strictly representational unless the residences are historic in nature," Ms. Saxe says with enthusiasm. She is quick to point out, however, that she is not a "realist," per se, although she has been labeled as such.

"I came of age when everyone was doing Abstract Expressionism," Ms. Saxe explains. "So in comparison, I was seen as creating realistic work. But not really."

Even so, Ms. Saxe's paintings capture the character and mood of the subject matter, adding flavor that makes each house unique. Yet her structures are oddly similar with their penchant for combining authenticity and imagination.

Light and shadow are two important aesthetic elements for Ms. Saxe, applied equally to her works which feature water. Consider her river views of the Hudson Valley, the Ville de France, and a street along the Seine in Paris. Harbor scenes where other configurations have been added, like a pool, bring Ms. Saxe's love of water closer to home.

Also closer to home are Ms. Saxe's recent paintings of the East End: The American Hotel (on this week's cover) and the Barefoot Contessa. The pieces evoke places that are familiar to locals, while also suggesting a new perspective as seen through the eyes of an artist who has recently arrived.

Despite the painterly qualities of these works, Ms. Saxe does manage to label herself a "scientist who likes to discover things. I used to paint for an audience of one (myself), but now I don't. I consider whom I'm painting for now."

—Marion Wolberg Weiss

Ms. Saxe's work can be seen at Amagansett's Crazy Monkey Gallery and Sag Harbor's Winfield Gallery.

The Dan's Papers They Made The Movie Here Film Festival Spring 2002

This Saturday you will be astounded to hear Woody Allen sing! Yes, it is almost as revolutionary as Al Jolson's squawky-talky renditions of "Mammy" and "Toot Toot Tootsie Goodbye" in the 1927 introduction of sound on film, The Jazz Singer! Woody's attempt at singing is just about as audacious a step "for man and a giant step for humanity," as Warner Bros' Vitaphone sound process, except that Woody's step is on a banana peel and the result is bruised laughter.

Woody SINGS??? If you think that's funny, wait for more surprises. Would you believe Julia Roberts, Goldie Hawn, Alan Alda, Drew Barrymore and about fifty Grouchos singing? And fetched further, John Cusak. They all croon willingly, if not ably, in Woody's nostalgic attempt to bring back a bit of the wonderful entertainment of the Hollywood musical. Of course, Woody's cock-eyed view of romance, is as off-beat as the actors-turned-singers warble dozens of some of the best pop songs ever written and this makes Everyone Says I Love You a Looney-Tuney delight. Inspired by the great songs and plot of, A Midsummer Night's Dream, three couples wander in and out of their relationships; as do a younger set of teenagers (their offspring) perpetually springing off and on to love affairs. This is all done to the orchestrations of the Hampton's favorite ivory tickler, Dick Hyman, with deliberately kooky choreography that has everyone dancing. In a funeral parlor catch the guy who's been cremated gathering his dust together and doing a spirited solo dance.

Woodrow has placed the tune-filled action in the most glamorous locations possible - how about Paris, Venice, New York City and Southampton's beaches. He opens in NYC in springtime with blossoms, flower, foliage and fountains springing up all over the place.

Everyone Says I Love You

Cusak is wooing his bride-to-be, Drew. Later, he surprises her with a too-expensive ring that is placed on the top of her creamy dessert, which she immediately devours. The ring that is. Fluoroscopes later, their passion resumes, but it signals to one and all, that true love is not always easy to swallow nor, is it particularly true.

Goldie Hawn, divorced from Woody, is now married to Alan Alda. They have a few teenagers, one is hers and Woody's. She is D.J., played by Natasha Lyonne, a rather obnoxious, Puckish meddler who, like Puck, meddles in various couples' affairs and narrates the "What Fools These Mortals Be" mish mosh. Woody has gone through girl friends who have been nymphomaniacs, sadists, drug addicts, you name it... it's no wonder they all have dropped him like a hot potato or the lukewarm neurotic he is. His daughter, D.J. is anxious to fix him up and through Machiavellian machinations gets him close to Julia Roberts and Venice. Did I mention, Woody lives in Paris? He's a writer who wanted to be a psychiatrist but he figures he sees so many psychiatrists it's pretty much the same thing.

Woody's look at love is less acerbic than usual. Like opening the movie in a New York City that resembles a Garden of Eden done over by Martha Stewart. He makes the bittersweet wins and losses of romantic strife as affable as an Abbot and Costello argument, checkerboarding locations from N.Y. to Paris to Southampton to Venice and back and forth with picture postcard salutations. He also includes greeting card hallmarks of best wishes with birthday wishes, get well sayings and, with relish, the holidays! Thanksgiving and, of course, Christmas in Paris and the Marx Brothers Ball given there. Woody and his ex, Goldie do swell Groucho impressions and kiss and make up. I'll say no more. D.J. does a bratty but better job of explaining the slippery story.

After the movie we'll enjoy a nosh and exchange a few sound bites about the film and Woody. The Hall is large so no reservations needed, but, be there early.

Saturday, April 27 at 2 p.m. at Southampton College's Duke Lecture Hall in Chancellor's Hall (The New Building at Main Parking Area). Admission is FREE and refreshments will be served.

SOUTHAMPTON COLLEGE PROUDLY PRESENTS THE DAN'S PAPERS THEY MADE THE MOVIE HERE FILM FESTIVAL

Featuring films that either take place on Long Island or were filmed here.

Saturday April 27- EVERYONE SAYS I LOVE YOU

Gotta' have a Woody Allen (Hamptons-on-film enthusiast) selection. This is his tuneful tribute to 1940 musicals with a dreamy-team cast of loving couples. Julia Roberts and Woody, Drew Barrymore and Edward Norton, Goldie Hawn and Alan Alda make off-key love, trouble and music as they sing their way through places like New York City, Venice and Southampton.

Saturday May 4 - THE FAN

Film and stage legend, Lauren Bacall's most controversial film. As a Broadway star stalked by an extremely psychotic admirer, Ms. Bacall exhibits both her dramatic and musical talents. Featured are James Garner and Maureen Stapleton and the Hamptons.

Movie starting at 2:30.

Saturday May 11 - SHE'S THE ONE

Long Island's own triple-threat film maker, Edward Burn's follow-up of his winning, The Brothers McMullen, delivers more of his sage wit, funny and serious situations and winning performances by Jennifer Aniston, Cameron Diaz and naturally, himself and The Island.

Saturday May 18 - Closed for Graduation

Saturday May 25 - GREY GARDENS

Back by popular demand, this somewhat shocking documentary remains compellingly poetic and touching. It captures a bit of the later years of Edith Bouvier Beale and her daughter, Edie (aunt and cousin of Jacqueline Onassis) filmed in their decaying, overgrown mansion in East Hampton. A hauntingly memorable experience.

Spring has sprung and it's time to get the house in order for the summer. There are all kinds of things that need to be done. Cleaning, a quick coat of paint here or there, perhaps a little decorating, new drapes or window treatments. Don't forget about the garage, undoubtedly there are all kinds of things in there that should go so you can make room for a new summer's clutter. It's also time to start thinking about what to do outside. Sure there is the garden to think of, but you can't forget that summer is all about fun. With that in mind, check out the story about outdoor games and barbecuing, now that's what summer is all about. The directory at the back of this guide can help you locate someone for any house or garden related need, so call them up and sit back and relax while they do the work. Think lemonade and let them worry about the bushes.

Within These Walls: 20 Designers, 20 Rooms

The Hampton Designer Showcase will open for its second year on June 29, after grabbing considerable attention last summer. The Showcase attracted top design talent last year; as the old Villa, gardens and surrounding property became the workspace of the selected muses. Each room of the Villa and the partitioned property was an expression of each artist's individual style and sensibility.

The Villa Maria and Siena Spiritual Center is set back from the road overlooking Mecox Bay in Watermill. Built in 1887, the original structure was a modest cottage that was architecturally notable in the Classic Queen Anne style. The original structure was relatively dwarfed by the sprawling green of the fifteen acres it sat on and the expanse of surrounding water facing south. It wasn't until 1909, that the Villa was renovated and embellished by a new owner to its existing Beaux-Arts style to make use of some of the land and proximity to the sea.

People driving by along Montauk Highway, inevitably notice the Villa's prominence and beauty and take note of its presence, but few may stop to truly explore the grounds and the history. Since 1953, the Villa Maria has served as a retreat for an order of catholic nuns who had committed the younger years of their life to the religion. But in recent years, the buildings interior had come to a dire need of repair and renovation. The Order expanded the use of the Villa to create the Siena Spirituality Center and an external source of income was needed to support operations the expanded facility.

Barbara Moller, an interior designer and local resident, a few years ago conceived the concept of the Hampton Designer Showcase after admiring the beautiful space for years. It took some hard convincing and the sisters of Villa Maria finally went for the idea as a way to raise funds to expand and promote the activities at the Spiritual Center.

Last year the showcase featured 20 top interior design firms, lead by Moller, each adorning a different room of the Villa Maria Center. The showcase also included nine landscape architects, lead by Edwina Von Gal and five decorative artists. The quality of the work was on par with that of the famous Kips Bay Showhouse in Manhattan, but the location, grounds and proximity to the water made it extra spectacular. In the three weeks that the showcase was open, the exhibit drew 15,000 visitors and raised $1 million for the Villa Maria.

Proceeds from the Hampton Designer Showcase at Villa Maria will benefit the Siena Spirituality Center. The center hosts retreats, meetings, seminars and many programs in arts, spirituality, education and holistic living to the community.

This years showcase will build off of last years success. And with the idea of keeping everything fresh and new

Interiors & Exteriors Gas Or Charcoal, And Other Questions For God

Every spring and early summer you see them. They stand at the hardware store or at Sears, concentrating fiercely before a row of grills and barbecues trying to figure out what to buy. They poke and prod the merchandise, lift the lids, scratch their chins thoughtfully and contemplate the vagaries of fire and food. This is primal; it speaks to some unknown region of the brain, the deepest cortexes that still retain the memories of caves, woolly mammoths, a club and an open fire. It is an important question. This one choice – electric, gas or charcoal – will have long term consequences; it will shape the course of innumerable summer evenings to come. Don't screw it up.

Of greatest significance is a definition of terms. You are not barbecuing when you take a piece of fish and place it over fire, you are grilling. Any time you place food over a hot open flame you are grilling; you are barbecuing when you slow roast meats for hours using a smoker. This is an important distinction to make, especially if you plan on spending any time outside the Northeast. When you are choosing an outdoor cooking apparatus you should have an absolute idea in mind about what you intend, and want, to do.

If your interest is in coming home from work and cooking up a couple burgers, then a gas or electric grill is the way to go. If you want to cook up some fall-off-the-bone ribs with a dry rub and a tangy sauce that Bubba taught you to make, then you are going to want charcoal or a smoker. Once you know how you want to prepare your food you can focus on a type of grill or barbecue to get.

There are some inherent advantages and disadvantages to each type of grill and barbecue so you also have to understand what you sacrifice when opting among electric, gas and charcoal. It's a messy debate, but here are the essentials. An electric grill is the most convenient; you flip a switch and you're ready to cook. But you lose out big time on the taste. A gas grill is also quite convenient and the taste is better than that of an electric grill, but not as good as with charcoal. Finally, charcoal is the most difficult and messy of the three, but the flavor is the best. In a series of taste tests, people couldn't tell the difference between burgers cooked on gas grills and charcoal grills, but they gave higher marks to steaks cooked over charcoal than gas. Again, your choice has to do with convenience.

A few other considerations are cost and where the grill will be. A big, charcoal fire may not be the best idea for all areas. An electric grill won't have any flare ups, while gas and charcoal will, so be conscious of where the grill is going. In terms of cost, gas is more expensive than charcoal and electric, so factor that into the decision making as well.

If you've decided to go gas, there are a few things to keep in mind. The most important consideration is what you want to do with the grill. You don't need a monster grill if you are only planning on cooking a few burgers and steaks at a time; conversely, if you like to entertain, you'll need a big grill to handle a pile of food. A necessary option for a gas grill is one that has multiple burner controls. You can have steaks on high on one side, fish on medium in the middle and vegetables on the other side staying warm. A second level rack is also a great option and the best are those that are about six inches wide and are hinged to the lid so the food on top is out of the way while you work the main cooking area. It's a great spot to keep things warm, grill buns and vegetables. Another good thing to look for is wide metal bars over the flames, which catch juices as they drip and are then vaporized and flavor the food. Many gas grills will have lava rocks or bricks that even out the heat and serve the same purpose as the grilling bars. Thermometers are usually inaccurate, however. Once you get to know your grill and its thermometer it can be a useful tool. Ten minutes at 300 degrees may not be 300 degrees, but if it came out perfect at that temp the last time, chances are it will be the same the next time. Cost is a personal matter, you can get a good gas grill for as little as $250 or as much as $2,500 or more.

If you go charcoal, the biggest consideration is what you're going to do. If you want to smoke ribs then you'll want a more involved grill than if you just want to grill steaks. Weber is the most popular brand out there and with the larger grills you can smoke food as well as grill it. Prices are pretty reasonable for these grills, ranging from $50 to $100. Charcoal is an important factor when using this type of grill and the difference between a Kingsford steak and a real hardwood charcoal steak is noticeable. Always keep your charcoal dry and use minimal lighter fluid to start the fire as it can impart a chemically taste if you use too much.

Beyond these basics, grilling is pretty simple and the better grillers will be more experienced grillers. Get to know the grill you buy and use it lovingly and often. It'll last for years and give you plenty of nights of gastronomic pleasure. —J.M.

The Fine Art Of Backyard Bliss

Last week's brief hot spell was only a little taste of the summer to come, an all too quick reminder of how close summer is and how hot it will probably be. So family barbecues are only around the corner. There are many things both kids and adults can do to have some fun outside during the family get-together, or just kill some time on a regular summer day, depending on the size and openness of your yard, and the kindness and understanding of your neighbors.

Throwing a ball around is one of the oldest traditions in a family; fathers teaching their sons how to throw a ball, brothers helping each other learn the basics to playing the games. Having a catch with my brother in the back yard of our house was always the best way to spend my time. We could spend hours pitching balls to each other, practicing our throws and our swings, more often than not breaking windows with random fly balls. Luckily our neighbors were extremely understanding.

But throwing the ball around is not the only thing you can do. According to the National Horseshoe Pitching Association, the tradition of pitching horseshoes goes all the way back to the Roman Empire, where soldiers would use the horseshoes thrown away from the chariot horses. Revolutionary War soldiers are said to have pitched horseshoes on Boston Common.

Horseshoes is an easy game to set-up. All you need are two stakes and four horseshoes. In your backyard you can use almost anything for stakes, and horseshoes can be found in almost any gaming store. My mother always told me "almost doesn't count except in horseshoes and hand grenades," so I guess it counts here.

The rules to horseshoes are simple. The game is broken up into innings, with each person playing tossing two horseshoes per inning. The winner can be decided two ways: either by being the first to reach a predetermined number of points, or by leading in points after playing through the predetermined number of innings. The pitching box is six feet away from the stakes. If you throw out a ringer, a horseshoe that is completely around the stake, you get two points. If the horseshoe is just touching the stake, or any part of it is within six inches of the stake, you get one point. A shoe throw outside the six foot mark of the pitching box is considered foul, and if one lands further than six inches away from the stake, you get no points. If you practice really hard, you may eventually be able to go out for the National Horseshoe Championship; they have a title for men, women, boys and girls. Unfortunately, there is no title for seniors just yet.

Badminton is also a good backyard game. The first badminton club was founded in 1878. Badminton is played on a court that resembles a tennis court, though much smaller, using smaller racquets and a shuttlecock instead of a tennis ball. Professional badminton players have been known to hit a shuttle up to 200 miles per hour. The rules are similar to those of tennis, with the sidelines changing for singles and doubles, and the serving court changing after each point. Points, however, are scored more like in volleyball. A point can only be scored when serving. When the serving side wins the rally, a point is awarded. If the receiving side wins the rally, they are awarded the serve. Points go up to 15. If the game gets tied at 14, the player who reached 14 first gets to decide whether to play to 15 or 17.

Indoors or outdoors, there is little that compares to a good game of darts. There are lots of variations, but for singles or doubles, Cricket is the easiest and most fun and can be played by up to four teams at once. In a game of Cricket, the only numbers that are important are 15 through 20, and the bullseye. You need to hit each number three times to close it out. After a number is closed, you are awarded points for each time it is hit. The winner is determined by who is first to close the bullseye with more points, so if you hit the bullseye three times, but your opponent has more points, you have not yet won the game.

In the end, there are plenty of games you can play to spend time. All that really matters is that with summer here, you find a way to spend that time in the sun.

One Man's Trash, Another Man's Treasure

Spring is in the air, as it has been all winter and it's time to start cleaning out that mess in the basement, garage, shed and any other stash places you may be housing. It's time to think about parting with all those treasures from last year's flea markets and garage sales. Time to get everyone in the house to give it up.

It's great if you can get a few neighbors to get in on it with you. You will save on advertising in the local papers and have help getting the word out on the corner poles, supermarkets, bulletin boards, libraries, wherever people stop for a second.

Make sure all your items are in presentable condition. Ok, there are some people who don't mind taking things 'as is'. But let me tell you from experience, those are the same people who want it for free. They will haggle you to death... so much so you are begging them to take the pair of skates, clubs, what have you.

I like to go to a garage sale where things are marked with the prices. Then you have a general idea of what this seller is willing to give you in the way of a bargain. I cannot stand walking up to someone and asking how much and watching him/her look around for their wife, husband, partner/child/dog for an answer. If you put your price on it that's that. I understand that it is an extra chore, but mark them with those little hanging tags or masking tape as you go through each item you are sorting.

Have someone there to help you... have someone roaming around with change in their pocket which, of course, you went and took care of that the day before. Plenty of loose change and dollar bills. Make sure you have an available extension cord and outlet so people can try out that radio or clock. Some batteries are a good idea also.

No matter what you do you are going to have people trampling on your lawn and flower beds. Try to line up your treasures in the driveway if you have one and sort of along the sidewalk, and perhaps on steps or a porch. Have a clear path for you to observe the folks in front of you with things off to the sides. You can try to block off the "off the limit" areas that you want to direct traffic away from with benches or chairs. And don't put the kids' toys near the spots you want protected.

Make sure you are specific about your times. If not, you will have the "early birds" there with you at 6 a.m. as you are trying to set up. And they WILL be there. They map out their runs the day or two before and will love nothing better than helping you get things underway.

It is a good idea to get all the stuff in the garage the week before, this way you just have to pull it out early the morning of your sale. Arm yourself with drinks and snacks. You will have a long day. Don't forget your cordless and/or cell phone. It always rings when you are outside.

Make lots of money and relax. Make it a fun experience. Then, when all your stuff is cleared out, no more clutter, you have the following weekend free to get out there yourself and get more for next seasons garage sale.

As a final note: Keep in mind, when the tables are turned and you are the shopper, that in the Hamptons there are a lot of people with very nice items that they offer at reasonable prices when having yard sales. It's like a treasure hunt and the take can be rewarding. Think of all those folks on "Antiques Road Show" who came upon little nuggets and treasures and ended up with amazing finds. This is good advice for the seller and buyer: know what your selling. That ugly porcelain dog that was your grandmothers could be priceless.

ENTERTAINMENT IN THE HAMPTONS (AND BEYOND)

theatre review: thoroughly modern millie... by barry gordin

Thoroughly Modern Millie, a new musical comedy, opened at Broadway's cavernous Marquis Theatre last week. The advance buzz I had heard was all extremely favorable and I went to the theatre with high hopes of being swept off my feet. Unfortunately, I am here to report this was not the case. Although not as bad as it could have been, it is also not nearly as good either.

Based on the 1967 movie of the same name, the story takes the audience back to the height of the Jazz Age in New York City when "moderns" were bobbing their hair and raising their hemlines. Enter Millie Dillmount, played by Sutton Foster, who is determined to marry her rich boss. The only problem is she has just arrived in NYC straight from Kansas and has no job. A chance encounter with Jimmy Smith, played by Gavin Creels, leads her to the Hotel Priscilla, a home for struggling young actresses. The hotel is run by the evil dragon-lady, Mrs. Meers (Harriet Harris), a former actress with contacts to the Asian white-slave market and a preference for orphans. Here Millie finds lots of fabulous clothes, a best friend in Miss Dorothy Brown (Angela Christian) and eventually lands a job with The Sincere Trust Insurance Company, where she discovers she indeed has a rich, handsome boss in Trevor Graydon (Marc Kudisch).

The musical's book, attributed to the late Richard Morris, lacks the camp of the original movie and rather exudes cuteness, without ever being zany or truly funny. This New York is fresh scrubbed and lacking in grittiness. It is all bright and breezy. The show's music, composed by Jeanine Tesori, is serviceable and indeed has some clever lyrics by Dick Scanlan.

The sets designed by David Gallo are sparse and modern with the Manhattan skyline in the background.

They are continually bathed in bright colors that match the bright colored costumes designed by Martin Pakledinaz, which are stylish though lack the feel of the era. The effect of the two combined, however, is a sumptuous eyeful with the lighting adding more and more color for a dizzying effect.

Sutton Foster, an understudy who took over the leading role a week before previews, began her career at the La Jolla Playhouse and is a "star-is-born" story waiting to happen that doesn't quite make it. She is full of enthusiasm, totally charming, has a very good voice and dances well to boot. She gives a polished stylish performance, but she fails to soar. Although she comes close a couple of times with the songs, "Jimmy" and "Gimme Gimme," one is always left wanting more. In fact, the whole evening comes close, but never actually delivers and one is continually waiting and hoping only to be ultimately let down. The talented performers are so saccharine sweet and so cute it almost makes you nauseous and the overall effect is as if the entire cast had overdosed on Prozac.

Marc Kudisch, as Millie's boss, comes off best and he alone delivers what the rest of the cast seems incapable of doing by sending up his cartoon character, while grounding him in reality at the same time. His performance is admirable, funny and enjoyable all at once. Ms Harris, whom the audience enjoyed immensely, also brought zest and a flare for comic timing while thoroughly enjoying herself and the audience's adulation.

If unapologetic silliness and cuteness delivered with unrelenting zest and an overly sweet style is your cup of tea, by all means rush to the Marquis Theatre where you will not be disappointed. I, however, prefer something more creative and original and would suggest if you haven't seen Urinetown get over to The Henry Miller Theatre and see the best new musical in town, one of the freshest, inventive new musicals to come along for quite sometime. If your funds are unlimited see them both and judge for yourself.

At the Marquis Theatre, 1535 Broadway, at 46th Street; 212-307-4100.

Guy de Fraumeni's

Can Ben Affleck get moral fiber? Can Ben get conscientious honor? Can Ben Boy get back important documents that his law firm must file. . . or else? Can Benny get the papers back from a very angry man, who lost a court case, because his little Toyota was crippled by Ben's big, shiny Mercedes? These are some of the questions good looking Benjamin must contend with in the current Affleck flick, Changing Lanes. No, the title doesn't mean that he was on his way from a tournament at East Hampton Bowling. (Though, there, he might have shown some real emotions of spiritual crisis or, outrage, for that matter, at his plight.) Having one day (Good Friday), to change his errant ways of shady, greedy, speedy, uncaring, unfeeling disregard for goodness. My goodness! Yes, all that. His wife reminds him, "It's an expensive life based on finding ways to cheat." She knows because she's costing him plenty and, he's been dumb enough (Ben does this well) not to realize this – let alone the fact that the law firm he's part of, run by his father-in-law, is as crooked as what's left of the little Toyota and the deprived life of the African-American man who got in Ben's way. However, Ben runs from the accident leaving the file. Now, the accidentee will get his way!

Samuel L. Jackson is the man who, basically, loses his sons because of Ben's indifference. Now, Jackson is an actor so, the ensuing war between the two creates sparks like the overhead electrical connections of carnival bumper cars but, as bumpy as their dueling gets (and, it gets rough) it eventually is felt as typical head-jerk, knee-jerk reactions, not unlike the violence in those old Warner Bros cartoons where bat bumps on the head escalate to a ten ton boulder landing on the head . . . OUCH! That's it, eh?

While Benny is beginning to see the light, some serious performances are lighting up the dull tract of "lane changing" that involves co-incidences galore, obvious battles of guilt and malevolence and other colliding gambits. Watch for Jackson's conflicts with his wife, played with tempered steel by Kim Staunton and also a tough and fine performance by Toni Collette as Ben's assistant/ conscience. And, the guy who knows best and shows it is Sydney Pollack who usually directs or produces. Here as the corrupt, father-in-law, senior law partner, he's so good you may never want a lawyer, again.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

On Saturday April 13, Ann Cooper, executive chef of the Ross School in East Hampton and newly elected president of Women Chefs & Restaurateurs hosted a fabulous food and wine benefit at the school.

A family of acclaimed women entrepreneurs gathered to offer their delectable fare to 200 attendees. Round dining tables were set in the commodious gymnasium at the School's Center for Well-Being. Buoyant green herbs in natural paper wrapped pots brightened each table and a gorgeous mix of baby lettuces adorned the banquets along the perimeter of the room setting the stage for the creative and sustainable food we were about to enjoy.

Women Chefs and Restaurateurs, WCR, was organized nine years ago by a group of women for networking as women entrepreneurs, to empower themselves in all aspects of the culinary industry. The late, great Barbara Tropp, cookbook author and restaurateur, and Barbara Lazaroff, restaurant designer and wife of Wolfgang Puck, were both founding members.

Some of the noteworthy presenters at this awesome event were Dorothy Cann Hamilton, Founder of the French Culinary Institute and Lynn Crawford, executive chef of the Four Seasons Hotel, both in New York City, Alison Becker-Hurt of Alison By The Beach, Sagaponack, Rozanne Gold, author of the acclaimed 1-2-3 cookbooks, Anne Quatrano, chef/owner of Bacchanalia, Atlanta, Georgia, Nora Pouillon of Nora's, Washington, DC, Ellen Greaves, Southampton Caterer and Deann Bayless of Frontera Grill in Chicago.

WCR is a professional association whose mission is the education and advancement of women in the restaurant industry. For women entering the field, membership in WCR is a way to get involved with passionate women who care. You may find yourself receiving e-mail messages from Alice Waters and Julia Child through their mentorship program. As president of WCR Ann Cooper addresses these values. You may contact their website www.chefnet.com/WCR/members.html.

LOBSTER WITH ASPARAGUS AND LEMON NAGE

Restaurateur Anne Quatrano of Atlanta, an executive board member of Women Chefs and Restaurateurs, is instrumental in forming their mentorship program. She contributed this delectable appetizer at the Ross School event.

Serves 6

- 3 1- 1 1/4 pound lobsters
- Coarse (kosher) salt and
- 1/3 cup chicken stock
- 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 1 1/2 sticks cold unsalted butter, cut into small dice
- 1/2 pound medium asparagus
- Freshly ground white pepper
- Fresh chervil or tarragon leaves for garnish

1. Bring a large pot of water to the boil. Add salt to taste and reduce to a simmer. Carefully place lobsters in the pot and cook for 6 minutes. Remove and immediately plunge into a bowl of ice water. Let stand for 5 minutes then crack open the lobster and remove the claws and tail. Cut into chunky pieces

2. Bring stock to a simmer in a small saucepan. Add lemon juice, a pinch of salt and freshly ground pepper to taste. With a whisk stir in the butter, a few pieces at a time until thoroughly incorporated. Taste to adjust seasoning for lemon and salt as necessary.

3. Trim, peel and cut asparagus into 1/4-inch slices. Blanch in salted boiling water until tender, about 3-4 minutes. Drain and immediately plunge into a bowl of ice water to stop the cooking.

4. To serve, divide asparagus equally among 6 small gratin dishes. Warm the lobster pieces with the lemon nage over medium heat. Divide lobster chunks equally over the asparagus and spoon over equal amounts of lemon nage. Garnish and serve at once.

CHILLED CARROT AND GINGER SOUP

Alison Hurt Becker, owner of Alison By The Beach in Sagaponack, presented this cool and creamy carrot and ginger soup. Carrot juice adds a fresh new taste to soup.
Serves 8

- 2 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 large onion diced
- 1 large leek, white part only, washed well and thinly sliced
- 2 celery root, peeled, sliced and diced
- 1/4 pound piece fresh ginger, peeled, sliced and diced
- 6 large carrots, peeled, and sliced

Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground white pepper
1 quart fresh carrot juice
Chives for garnish, optional

1. Heat the oil in a large saucepan and put in the onion, leek, celery and ginger. Stir the vegetables to coat and then place a square of wax paper over them; cover the pot and sweat over low heat for 6-7 minutes. Remove and discard wax paper.

2. Add carrots to the vegetables and water to cover. Bring to the edge of a boil then simmer the soup with cover ajar for 20-25 minutes. Season with salt and white pepper. Puree in a blender and strain through a fine sieve or puree in a food mill over a bowl. Add half the carrot juice to the soup and chill for several hours or overnight.

3. Before serving stir in the remaining carrot juice and garnish with snipped chives, if desired.

COCONUT AND BANANA TUILE

The talented entrepreneur Dorothy Cann Hamilton, founder of the French Culinary Institute and the pastry chefs of the institute prepared this deliciously crunchy coconut cookie.

For the tuile:

- 3 1/2 cups unsweetened flaked coconut
- 1 1/3 cups granulated sugar
- 6 large eggs

For the caramel sauce:

- 1 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup water
- 1 cup heavy cream

To Finish:

1-2 bananas cut into 1/8 inch slices
Turbinado (raw) sugar

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

1. Mix the coconut and sugar together. Slightly whisk the eggs in a bowl then add them to the coconut mixture. Stir to mix well and let rest 15 minutes so the sugar dissolves a little.

2. With a 3 inch round stencil spread the tuile batter on a Silpat lined baking sheet or Non-stick sheet pan. You will need 2 pans.

3. Bake in preheated oven for 8-10 minutes until golden brown.

4. For the caramel sauce, mix the sugar and water in saucepan. Wash the sides down with a brush and place on high heat. When the caramel is a deep amber color slowly pour in the cream. Step back as this process will produce a lot of steam

5. Cook, stirring, until all the sugar is dissolved into the cream Strain and cool.

To assemble:

Fan banana slices in a spiral around each tuile. Sprinkle with turbinado sugar and caramelize with a blowtorch or under a broiler. Serve with coconut or chocolate ice cream drizzled with caramel sauce.

LEMON BUTTERMILK ICE CREAM

Rozanne Gold, author of the acclaimed 1-2-3 cookbooks shares her lemon buttermilk ice cream from her newbook Desserts, 1-2-3

2 cups superfine sugar

6 large lemons
1 quart buttermilk

1. Put the sugar in a medium-size bowl. Grate the zest of 2 or 3 lemons so that you have 2 tablespoons of zest. Juice as many lemons as needed to get 1/2 cup lemon juice. Add zest and juice to the sugar the bowl and mix well.

2. Add the buttermilk and 1/8 teaspoon coarse salt and stir until sugar is dissolved. Chill 4 hours or overnight. Freeze in an ice-cream maker according to the manufacturer's instructions.

Dining in The Hamptons

You are sitting in traffic heading out to the Hamptons, an aggravation we are all too familiar with. Is there a solution to the problem besides a private helicopter? If you take exit 66 south off of Sunrise Highway and visit Indian Cove Restaurant, you will leave your frustrations behind. The restaurant is located on the Shinnecock Canal in Hampton Bays and there is nothing more tranquil than enjoying a drink or a meal while watching boats cruise through the water surrounded by the panoramic view of a beautiful sunset.

Co-owner Rene Peyrat was trained in France and was previously the executive chef and manager at the Carlyle Hotel in New York before coming to the East End. He has integrated his past experience into his present surroundings and achieved a masterful combination of quality wines that complement the menu at Indian Cove. He takes great pleasure in introducing wines that one may not have had the opportunity to try before and updates a blackboard of selections daily. From the comprehensive wine list you may sample a glass starting at $6.00 or share a bottle of your choice from $18 and up.

His partner and head chef Bernard Miny who also trained in France and was formerly the head chef at Le Chef in Southampton, takes great pride in preparing the freshest dishes with a French influence and refined flavor. Both Rene and Bernard have combined their experiences to bring an original culinary style that will not disappoint.

Upon my arrival recently at the Indian Cove Restaurant I was greeted by the restaurant manager, Cathy Stewart. I began the evening with a glass of Lenz

Indian Cove Restaurant & Marina

Chardonnay, a Long Island North Fork wine, that complemented a mouth-watering cake of lump crabmeat with shrimp and delicately fried calamari appetizer.

Sitting in the spacious bar on the top floor overlooking the canal and main dining room that boasts a 30-foot vaulted ceiling, you appreciate this unique location. As weather permits, the outside deck opens and many guests enjoy sitting outdoors during the spring and summer and fall seasons. When you enter the main dining room you are captivated by the open-air feeling that surrounds you in the grand space that feels like a modern day chateau with glass walls. "Every seat in the house will offer breathtaking views."

After we were seated in the dining room, Rene suggested a glass of Macon Village Chardonnay, a smooth '99 French wine to complement the variety of entrées to come. For our first course, we were promptly presented with a bowl of New England clam chowder that was rich and creamy yet light in consistency with potatoes, corn and dashes of balanced spices, and crispy fresh salad with toasted Goat cheese served in a vinaigrette dressing that was out of this world. A few other appetizers on offer are: lobster and shrimp bisque, mesclun, tomato & mozzarella salad, country pate of L.I. duck with pistachios, escargots with shallots in garlic and butter, steamed mussels with a white wine shallot broth, clams casino, chilled shrimp cocktail and local oysters and clams served with balsamic mignonette or cocktail sauce. Appetizers, soups and salads are priced between $4.25 and $10.75.

The next entrée up was risotto served with lobster, shrimp, scallops and basil in a light flavorful cream sauce. This heavenly dish was a fine combination of seafood cooked to perfection and a sauce that complimented without excessively saturating it with richness. A roasted cod entrée with red pepper and mushrooms topped with jumbo shrimp and caviar served in a beurre blanc on a bed of wild rice was also sensational. Bernard has surpassed everyday dining standards with this peerless selection that provides an abundance of flavor with a light flaky texture.

Did you just ask if we would like another glass of wine? Cotes-du-Rhone, a red wine from France was the answer to complementing the roasted rack of lamb that will melt in your mouth. It was served with a fresh rosemary and mint jelly accompaniment and a medley of vegetables and mashed potatoes. Some other entrée selections are steamed lobsters from 1 1/2 lbs to 2 1/2 lbs, scallopini of veal with portabello mushrooms and beurre blanc sauce and a NY sirloin steak with dijon mustard and black pepper sauce. Mind you that portions here are very generous, so you may want to skip a meal before dining at Indian Cove. Blackboard specials are updated. Prices range from $12.75 to $25.75.

Just when we thought we could eat no more... then there was dessert! As beautiful as the presentation was, the taste was even better. A rich crème au chocolate cake was served warm and melted in your mouth and the tiramisu was a light and creamy combination. Other selections include a homemade cheesecake, la Gateau au Chocolate, crème brulee and french crepes with vanilla ice cream, berries and chocolate. Prices range from $4.50 to $6.00.

Dining in The Hamptons

Side Dish By Aji Jones

Big news over at the Seafood Barge in Southold. Owner Dick Ehrlich has announced that one of Long Island's premier chefs, Michael Meehan, will be joining the staff as Executive Chef. Meehan has an outstanding reputation. He received three stars from Newsday at the Mill River Inn, Tupelo Honey and at Veritage. "We are delighted to have a chef of Michael's stature join our kitchen. Meehan raises the culinary bar on the North Fork," states Ehrlich. Meehan takes over the kitchen next week.

It was a foodie's paradise last Thursday over at Club Swa in Wainscott. Chefs and restaurateurs from all over the East End congregated to help WordHampton Public Relations celebrate its ten-year anniversary. The food and beverage PR firm hosted the likes of such chefs as The Maidstone Arms' Paul Del Favero, Painters' Michael Keaveney, the Clam Bar's Brian Mooney, Pacific East's Michael Castino, Peconic Coast's Dennis MacNeil, Bill Valentine and Bostwick's and Santa Fe's Chris Eggert – with food prepared by the Star Room's Kevin Penner and Gretchen Menser. (We especially liked the goodie buckets complete with our own bottle of Peconika vodka and Hamptons Luxury Liner bottled water – nice!) Other restaurateurs in attendance were Mark Smith of Nick & Toni's, Rowdy Hall and La Fondita; Dick Ehrlich of The Seafood Barge and Clam Bar; Dean Golden of The Wild Rose; Robert Durkin of Robert's; Kevin Boles of Santa Fe Junction and Bostwick's; Stuart Kreisler and Bill Bonbrest of 95 School Street and The Laundry; Walter Struble from Della Femina; George Korten of George Martin; Larry Wohlander of Painters' and Cliff and Lisa Blinderman of Second Nature Markets. And did we see the beautiful Peggy Lauber and ravishing Charlotte Deutsch of Bedell and Corey Creek? You bet we did!

Turtle Crossing will host a new "Happy Hour" from 5 – 7 p.m., on Mondays, Thursdays, and Fridays. These evenings are a perfect opportunity to have a drink and a chat with owners Nancy and Stanley Singer. A free appetizer buffet and two-for-one draft and well drinks will be available.

Chef/owner Douglas Gulija of The Plaza Cafe has launched a new web site, www.plazawinedinners.com. The site is designed to provide information about the restaurant, with a particular focus on The Plaza Cafe's wine program and popular wine dinners. For those who appreciate The Plaza Cafe's fine wines and great food, the new web site is a great resource. (Visit the site for more information regarding The Plaza Cafe's upcoming Vintners Dinner with Testarossa Vineyards on May 11.)

The dish hears that....

Isaac Mizrahi was seen dining on Roquefort salad with a friend at Della Femina in East Hampton a few Fridays ago. Billy Joel was dining with a friend there the same night. Apparently Joel grouched – as he always does – that his caricature that hangs in the bar area needs to be updated. He wants them to delete his double chin and add the goatee! Bill Beutel stopped by at Babette's in East Hampton last Saturday for lunch. He had a sampler, and his wife had a dragon bowl. Actor Peter Boyle was also there that day, chowing on a turkey burger and sipping ginseng fruit-infused tea.

Here's something for all you wine lovers out there: The Long Island Wine Council has announced the new location for its popular Windows on Long Island Wine event, now in its twelfth year. The event will be held this year on April 29, 2002, at Guastavino's, a new City hot spot located in the dramatic, vaulted and tiled space beneath the Queensboro Bridge. Proceeds from the event will go this year to the Earth Pledge Foundation, and the Windows of Hope Family Relief Fund. For details, call the Council at 631-477-8493.

GARDENING AND SKIN

There is no doubt about it, the recent warm weather has sent gardeners and amateurs alike off to home and nursery centers. The normal gardening regime that is usually reserved for May has now been pushed back to April. Just because the heat of the sun may not be strong yet, there are many reasons to stay protected. Overexposure to the sun's rays affects people of all ages and skin types. Whenever possible, try to limit your outdoor activities between daylight hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. That is when the sun's UV rays are at their peak. An SPF of 15, or even higher is a must for the skin. Be sure to reapply it often, especially when perspiring. We hardly think to do that at the beach, we would think to do it less often when gardening. Wear a brimmed gardening hat, one with a brim of about four inches should cover you. Wearing dark, long sleeved and legged clothing is your best bet, although it may not be too comfortable. The dark clothing protects the sun from touching the skin. Some medications increase the skin's sensitivity to the sun. Check with your doctor or pharmacist before heading out to the garden or shore. Banana Boat SPF 50 is tops for coverage. It has a non-offensive fragrance and rubs in completely! Bath and Body Works Moisturizer SPF 15 offers instant coverage, however, only for a short time in the sun. Bath and Body Works Lip Protect SPF 30 is great and Clinique Super City Sun Block with a SPF of 25 (can be purchased at Saks Fifth Avenue, Southampton and Whites Pharmacy, East Hampton), gives you super protection amongst those pansies plus a tinted moisturizing face for a healthy sun-kissed look. ($14.50) It can be purchased at Macy's and online at www.clinique.com

Benefit Cosmetics have introduced one the hottest little items to hit the counters this spring. They are She Shells for spring!

BeneFit Cosmetics offers up two adorable, portable products in a limited-run selection of eye shadows and lip cremes. All come in little plastic shell-shaped compacts and are perfect for a spring day. BeneFit products are available at Macy's and Bloomingdales and other select stores and online at www.benefitcosmetics.com or by calling 1-800-781-2336.

The Eye Cremes come in bright colors: She Star - Iridescent yellow-green and She Breeze - Iridescent pink green,

The Benefit Lip Cremes come in: She Coral - Coral tint neutral, She Tide - Buff neutral, She Splash - Rose tint neutral and She Shore - Iridescent pink coral.

Choosing the right products for your skin protection should be just as important to you as choosing the right annuals and perennials for you garden. Happy Digging!

Solutions For The Blond Gone Green

You must get rid of the build up on your hair, before you start looking like the Incredible Hulks younger sister. An early hint is that you may start to notice a slight green or ashy tint to your usually goldie locks.

An ashen blonde color can make your complexion and overall appearance appear - pale and washed out. Especially in the early spring months, we are still a little peekish from the winter and our hair can get dry from the climate change and from being inside to much. These are all solvable problems. There is something to be said for treating a problem before it gets too out of hand.

Since the beginning of time women have known the secrets of using various foods items to enhance beauty, resolve skin and hair problems and provide solutions to common problems. Sometimes the natural approach to dealing with hair care problems can work just as well as expensive formulas. It makes sense that simple foods work well for many beauty treatments and recipes.

Blonde hair that has turned green from too much exposure to pool chemicals or sun responds well to - believe it or not - the ketchup treatment.

It is fairly simple to do. Apply real ketchup to the hair. Work it in carefully with your fingers or a very wide toothed comb. Leave the ketchup on your hair for 20-30 minutes. Shampoo and rinse with cold water. Depending on the amount of green this treatment may need to be done more than once. The down side to this treatment is obviously that the smell can be a little overpowering. And you may not want ketchup on your fries for a while. Like all the other crazy treatments, it can also be messy.

If you decide to go the more formulated route, there are plenty of really good products on the market to deal with blonde hair gone green or chemically altered hair.

From Aveda, you can try their Hair Detoxifier, which was created to deal with over chlorinated hair. The product is quite good, although it does have a drying quality, as many clarifying shampoos do. The answer to that is to follow up with a deep conditioner and leave it on your hair for three to four minutes.

Another good product is made by the french company Phytotherathie. People love these products because of the clear glass packaging and beautiful graphics. Their restoring shampoo is the Phytocidre Restoring Shampoo and it is made with cider vinegar to restore the hair's cuticles.

Whatever method you may choose, do it now before summer hits and the real green begins. Because when you are in and out of the pool alot, the green just gets greener.

How To Be Cool (And Comfortable)

Be fit. Hit the streets. Hit the clubs. Hit the beach. Sneakers are in full force this season with the choices abounding from vintage classic Tretorns (circa 1975, a la Bjorn Bjorg) to lightweight-engineered styles from Nike. Choice is the key to sporty style this spring and whatever your preference, comfort and style are connected more than ever with all brands getting their hands in the game.

Choices abound from brands like Nike, Adidas, Vans, Tretorn, Puma, Reebok and Sketchers. Each one has its own take on making feet comfortable this season and they are looking great in the process.

Wherever your wanderlust may take you this spring, make sure you have the right shoes on your feet. The styles are varied to suit the beachgoer as much as the chic city-man-about town.

The real story of this season is that the classic styles are coming back in full force. Sporty chic has always been popular, but this year functionality has hit the beach. With the opening of a flagship store on Broadway in Soho, Puma announced their comeback to the world and their products are flying off the shelves. Styles from their classic suede flat-bottoms in every color of the rainbow to the new "Platinum" laceless line, are this season's "it" accessories and you can expect everyone from 10-year old surfer-dudes to World Cup athletes to be sporting the styles. Puma is all about sport and lifestyle and by combining the two, they have cornered the market. Their new styles include the aerodynamic Talala, which has no laces at all and a buckle on the side for an ultra-snug fit. The shoe's functionality has been advocated by spin gurus and die-hard trainers to wear both on and off the bike. Puma has also expanded their apparel line to include workout clothes. A spokesperson for Puma said, "I think consumers have an increasingly elevated expectation of comfort. People have expressed the need to fuse lifestyle and sport and that is what we are doing," when he explained their recent successes.

Puma has re-released their Roller Kitty roller-sneakers in hot shades for young skaters on the go. Girls are going nuts over these brightly colored skates and the sport is making a real comeback. The craze started on the West Coast on the boardwalks of Venice

Beach and you can expect to see these bright young things on the streets in East Hampton this summer.

Other classics are also back. Tretorns, which in my memory were the first tennis balls and sneakers that colors. These sneakers have become so popular in beach resorts in California that stores have waitlists and backorders through Christmas.

But sneakers are not just for kids and the beach.

Top fashion designers have realized the need for comfortable and fashionable footwear and this year Adidas and Nike have partnered with some of the top name designers to produce limited edition models.

Due to Nike's successes last year with the Air Presto, fashionistas learned that sneakers could be sexy again. The Prestos could be relatively fairly priced because of the lightweight material, and they sold on the fact that people could customize the colors to their preferences. And with this model marketed these custom designed shoes on their website and in their behemoth Niketown stores.

In response to these successes Adidas has gone the way of outrageous by teaming up with Japanese designer Yohji Yamamoto. However, these Adidas are not for post-soccer practice kids. The price tag on the laceless design is $290 and are only available at a limited number of boutiques and Adidas retailers.

Christian Dior, Jil Sander, Dries Van Noten and Hogan have also designed some of this season's hottest numbers. The demand for rubber soles in high fashion has reached

I can recall, are back in vogue. Tretorns are so popular with the country club set for both on and off the court that cute women in tennis skirts are willing to bear the pain on their knees (from lack of support) for how darling the shoes look on their feet. And Tretorn makes adorable rainboots too. They are available at most sporting goods stores, pro shops and many vintage clothing stores.

Look for Vans this season in styles like their Authentic Deck Shoe with the classic outer sole and their Classic Checkered slip-ons in limited edition new heights because in the February fashion shows many models were seen sporting ubercool sneaks and looking glamorous in the process. You can expect to see this trend everywhere this spring and summer and men and women will be sporting a lot of the same styles. High fashion sneakers are generally unisex or the same model will be available in both men's and women's sizes.

So get running because masses of people are quickly snatching up all of the different styles, faster than you can lace up your last season's bowling shoes and get out the door.

POLICE BLOTTER

Thieves in Water Mill took everything plus the kitchen sink from a newly constructed house on Little Cobb Road. Police responded to a call from a building contractor who said that between 6 p.m., April 6, and 7 a.m. the next day, someone entered the unlocked house and stole two doors, 13 brass doorknobs, two glass cabinets and a porcelain sink. Police have no leads as to who took the $5,450 worth of building supplies.

A Bridgehampton construction sight was looted of a $600 chain saw and a $4,000 generator three days later on the Bridgehampton-Sag Harbor Turnpike. The manager of the sight told police that the thieves broke a lock on his trailer to access the booty.

Fore! Watch out for falling trees at the South Fork Country Club in Amagansett. Police reported that four trees, almost 40 feet tall each, were cut down on the edge of the 9th tee. According to a country club board member's response from Witmore's Nursery, it will cost about $10,000 to replace the trees. The three Hickory and one Cherry were standing in front of adjacent houses, blocking the homeowners' views to the golf course and the ocean. As of press time, police couldn't say for sure if there were any definite suspects. For the sake of Earth Day, hug a tree.

Make-up, credit cards and $202 cash were stolen from a Marders Nursery employee after leaving her purse in her unlocked car for a few minutes.

Three youths in a dark pick-up truck may be the culprits in the latest case of smashed mailboxes. A Washington Drive resident told police that she saw them make a sharp turn from Washington onto Montauk Highway last Friday night. The next day four mailboxes were found destroyed.

An East Hampton Town Police officer arrived at Zabroski Field last Saturday in response to a man who was beat up by two men that he knows. He told the officer that the two assailants had followed him to the field in their van before getting out and punching him repeatedly and kicking his car, causing significant damage to both. The victim accompanied the officer to the men's home where one of them was arrested. Police later caught up to and arrested the other beater after finding out that he'd hopped on the Jitney. Both men spent the night in lock-up awaiting their arraignment the next day.

Southampton Town cops arrested a 26-year-old Riverhead man after he ran his car into a stop sign and embankment on Route 104 in Flanders. He was charged with DWI and various vehicle and traffic violations.

A Ross School student was robbed of $2,655 in personal items last Saturday night at a high school party. He told police that he set his bag down, containing a laptop computer, a calculator, a Ross School shirt, an SAT II book, and a Chinese folder, but when he returned to get it, someone had taken it.

After getting into a minor car accident at the East Hampton Town Dump last Monday, a 29-year-old North Carolina man could only produce a learners permit from his home state. Before leaving the scene, the officer kindly instructed the man not to drive anymore. I guess them Southerners understand police requests as well as they understand the use of mustard on fast food products. As the officer sat at the entrance to the dump to fill out his paperwork, the Carolina man drove by. He was subsequently arrested for unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle and released on $50 bail.

The Cozy Cabins in Wainscott were apparently so cozy for one tenant that she left after her lease was up with about $350 worth of Cozy Cabins property, including a refrigerator, pots, pans and kitchen items. She also left a decent sized hole in the wall.

If only everyone in this diverse world would understand and follow the concept of karma. Southampton cops arrested a 33-year-old Speonk woman at the Hampton Bays Macy's last Tuesday. Store security said that she took Macy's bags filled with unpurchased clothing into a dressing room and removed the security tags. When she tried to leave the store, police had arrived to arrest her for petit larceny.

Dan's LETTERS

CRITIQUING THE CRITIC

Dear Dan,

While I have never been a fan of Marion Wohlberg Weiss (her Art Commentary columns seem intended to obscure rather than inform), her review of the Ross School student photography exhibit at Solar struck a particularly low blow.

She begins by complimenting the exhibit and then proceeds to bash nearly everything about it (while at the same time blowing her own horn — one of her greatest talents, I've noticed).

Marion should be a little less critical of the children's work and perhaps a bit more critical of her own.

HAS ANYONE SEEN OUR PIZZA?

Dear Dan,

As per your usual high standards, the April 5, 2002 issue was a beautiful publication, especially the contest results. As the designated winner, we never heard from your staff regarding the delivery of our prize pizza. Realizing the trip to Lake Grove is a bit out of your neighborhood, we were prepared to offer to meet you at Uncle Joe's for a pizza and maybe a photo. We would have loved to put the pizza and "Dan" on the wall next to the April 5 issue. However, we understand that old news is no longer news and are very proud to have been chosen the First Annual Pizza Essay Contest winner.

We so totally enjoyed the taste-testing adventure that we wish to make the following announcement: Calculations of detailed preparations for Dan's Second Annual Pizza Essay Competition have officially begun.

J'AI PERDU MON PAPIER

Dear Dan,

A few days ago, there was a notice in my mailbox, here in Paris from Extand, an (express!) delivery service, asking me to call because their driver was unable to deliver a package from M. D. Papon due to lack of the code to the gate. D. Papon? When I call their 800 number their Nadia at last informs me that they can only give a day for re-delivery — not a time, note even 'morning or afternoon.' I can think of no day soon that I am going to be home ALL day. Thus the questions: How big is the package? Could I collect it myself on two wheels (motorbike)? Where is Extand?

And the answers: It is a largish envelope. You could collect it yourself. Extand main office is located in Vitry s/Seine, a southern suburb of Paris

Okay. On Wednesday, I go to Antony, a suburb even further south, so I shall come by. Nadia, who by this time has become almost friendly, promises to keep the package for me, assures me that Extand is "easy to find."

Well, perhaps with an up-to-date book of Paris suburbs maps it is; the one I had did not have the name of the street but it's easy to find when you get to the ZI Salvator-Allende (industrial area of that name).

Well, the sun is shining and I had all afternoon. Like all canny Parisians, I do not set off cross-country-south-suburbia. Instead, I return to the outskirts of Paris, wheel to the closest direct main artery and head south.

The trained mind says that a sign 'Port d'Anglais' is a clear indication that there is water somewhere near. A quick map consultation gets me not only by the banks of said Seine but before another sign for ZI!

ZI is large, sprawling and large-truck-infested. No 'Extand' sign. All that remains to attain Extand is to locate the button that releases the striped entrance barrier. But there is Nadia, and I see at last the package that has occasioned all these several words; the envelope with the handwritten return address...

Dan's Papers

Undoubtedly there is something to be said for mental telepathy, thought transmission or whatever. I had just been thinking about not receiving any Dan's Papers in 2002 and wondering — even to the point of thinking of (eventually) sending you an e-mail — when lo and behold, three arrive in the package! Thank you! And I appreciate the effort/time and expense that went into sending them. I enjoyed discovering a new part of the Seine. Yet perhaps a simple mailing would suffice on other occasions?
